SS. QUEEN MARY NEARS NEW SPEED RECORD

MAY 12 NEXT YEAR DATE OF CORONATION

Choice of Day for King Edward VIII Ceremonies in London Announced Officially Today; Expected 3,000,000 Will See Royal Processions

Associated Press

London, May 28.—Prime Minister Baldwin today set May 12, 1937, as the day on which King Edward VIII will be formally invested with the authority of the British throne in a centuries-old coronation ceremony.

The announcement was made in a special issue of the official Gazette. The date will be officially proclaimed at colorful ceremonies in the heart of London tomorrow.

Active preparations will begin at once for the vast array of pageantry and ceremonial that will mark the event which will reach its climax in Westminster Abbey when the Archbishop of Canterbury places the famous jewelled crown on the King's head.

MANY VISITORS

For London the ceremony will mean the influx of several hundred thousands of visitors from all parts of the world. It is expected ten ruling kings and queens, in full regalia, together with 150 or more princes in picturesque costume, will be the guests of the United Kingdom.

Every Dominion and colony will have its envoys present. Every foreign country will be represented.

To share the pomp and color of the occasion, at least 3,000,000 people are expected to line the route of the royal processions which will open and conclude the coronation.

A grand naval review at Spithead probably will follow the coronation. Other special military reviews will be held. Socially, the coronation is expected to give London one of the most brilliant seasons of the century, if not the most brilliant. Hostesses already are making plans for elaborate entertaining on a scale unmatched in recent years.

Tokio, May 28.—The newspaper Asahi said today the Japanese consul at Sydney, Australia, had been instructed to lodge a protest with Australian authorities over the commonwealth's new higher tariff policy.

AUTO CAMPS OPTIMISTIC

Operators in Some Cases Report Business Already 50 Per Cent Higher

Operators of automobile camps in Greater Victoria, some of whom already report business better than at this season last year by as much as 50 per cent, are without exception looking forward with confidence to an excellent tourist season.

Improved accommodation in some of the camps has already led to a large number of inquiries and reservations.

The holiday week-end was a good one for the camp operators, most of whom report excellent business and a visitors' list well above May 24 of last year. But in addition to the holiday increase the general day-to-day attendance is steadier and larger.

The points of origin of the visitors seem to be fairly varied. One camp reports nothing but up-island and California tourists; another had an influx from Vancouver for the Victoria Day celebration, and another still has a good number of winter visitors from the prairies remaining.

Every camp operator questioned this morning was of the opinion that business this year would be the best in many years. The camps are being spruced up for the summer season. Accommodation for trailer tourists is planned by some of the camps.

Five persons were killed and scores injured in a big fire a few days ago that was driven through the New Jersey pine belt by a high wind, defying efforts of volunteers and Civilian Conservation Corps workers for hours to check its advance. McDowell Chosen Liberal Candidate For By-election

Is Given Nomination on First Ballot By Ward Delegates and Is Cheered as Result Announced; Premier Pattullo Speaks at Meeting

The Liberal Party went into Victoria's eight-day federal by-election campaign today behind C. J. McDowell, chosen on the first ballot at a nominating convention last night as the Mackenzie King government's standard-bearer.

An enthusiastic gathering of delegates in the Chamber of Commerce selected Mr. McDowell to continue the fight which he started in the general election last October to put Victoria in the Liberal column at Ottawa, and amid cheers led by H. M. McGiverin, Victoria Liberal Association president, the nomination was acclaimed and workers pledged their support.

Four names were submitted to the meeting, which was the first "delegate convention" of Liberals held in many years. Out of 262 ballots marked Mr. McDowell received 137, Mr. McGiverin 78, C. E. Whitney-Griffiths 28 and Frank Hall 19. A nominee required 132 votes to win so Mr. McDowell was immediately returned as the candidate.

"I take this as an endorsement of my last campaign," said the candidate in a brief acceptance speech. "One takes a lot of abuse in politics, and it feels good to get such encouragement."

Mr. McDowell was nominated by Fred W. Davey, who described him as "a business man who understands the needs of this constituency." In the general election there was a comparatively small majority against him, and now, standing as a government candidate, he had every chance of being successful.

Rt. Hon. W. G. A. Ormsby-Gore Appointed Britain's Colonial Secretary

Associated Press

London, May 28.—Prime Minister Baldwin today named William George Arthur Ormsby-Gore, former Postmaster-General, as Colonial Secretary.

The new cabinet minister, fifty-one years old and a Conservative, succeeds Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, who resigned from the ministry last week because of the government budget leakage scandal.

From 1922 to 1924 he was Parliamentary Undersecretary of State for the Colonies. In 1931 he was Postmaster-General.

JUDGE FROWNS ON DIVORCES

Not For the Good of Society Comments Mr. Justice Manson

The tendency of husbands to accept the stigma and let divorce cases go undefended where a marriage had proved unhappy was referred to by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson in the Supreme Court this morning before the hearing of a divorce application opened.

The remarks were prompted when counsel for the husband stated that since he had been consulted he had advised the husband, in view of the information he had given him, not to defend the case.

"There is a tendency when marriages have proved unhappy," commented the judge, "for the husband not to defend the wife's application for a divorce and to accept the stigma of infidelity which is a stigma even in these sophisticated days.

"Many divorces are not wise or necessary if we have regard to the good of society. Just because the eggs are not fried on the right side cannot be grounds for divorce. There seems to be an inclination to view the matter like our cousins across the line."

The divorce application was made by a wife who was a bride of eighteen at the time of her marriage five years ago.

The judge asked many questions regarding the circumstances which led up to unhappiness which made her seek a divorce before granting the application.

Traveler Slays Border Guard

C. M. Flachs Shot at Blaine; J. A. Fraser Critically Wounds Self

Associated Press

Bellingham, May 28.—Sheriff's officers rushed to Blaine, Wash., at noon when word was received that Charles Flachs, United States immigration official at the Pacific Highway station, had been shot and killed by an unidentified man, who then turned the gun on himself and unsuccessfully attempted suicide

The slayer, the sheriff was told, had been taken off a southbound bus for examination when he suddenly attacked Flachs, an immigrant inspector at the border city the last six years.

The slayer's name was given by border officials as Fraser, first name not learned, of Vancouver, B.C.

The assailant was reported dying from self-inflicted wounds.

Seattle, May 28.—Immigration authorities here said John Albert Arthur Fraser, forty, Vancouver, shot and killed Charles M. Flachs, forty-four, Blaine immigration inspector today and then shot himself. Fraser was not expected to recover.

Vancouver, May 28.—Police today were investigating the possibility that J. A. Fraser, who shot an immigration official to death at Blaine, Wash., was a member of the Ontario criminal gang led by "Red" Ryan, shot to death recently in a Sarnia liquor store robbery.

Passengers Displaying Interest As Ship Shows Best Paces In the Atlantic

With Giant New Liner Stepped Up to 32 Knots indications Are Seen British Are Seeking to Recover Trans-Atlantic Crossing Speed Record From French Liner Normandie; Queen Mary in New York From England Monday

Associated Press

Aboard the Ss. Queen Mary en Route to New York, May 28.—The Queen Mary's Powerful turbines drove Britain's new pride of the seas toward her first landing in the United States at a fast clip today.

Slight vibration became noticeable, especially aft, as the Queen Mary touched a speed unofficially estimated at about thirty-two knots. It did not, however, disturb the passengers.

There were increasing indications of an attempt to beat the Normandie's record average speed of 30.35 knots if favorable conditions continue.

The Queen Mary is expected to reach New York Monday, probably docking in the afternoon.

(An official of the Cunard-White Star Line in New York said the ship would not try for a record crossing, but there probably would be an attempt during the trip to set a record for one day's travel. It was stated the present record was held by the Normandie at 748 nautical miles in one day.)

CARRIES GOLD

A long delay at Cherbourg increased reports the Queen Mary would try for the record, but there was no official confirmation. One reason given for the delay was heavy gold shipments had to be placed aboard; another, changing tides were the reason.

The Queen Mary finally got out of Cherbourg at 12.35 a.m. (4.35 p.m. Wednesday P.S.T.). It was reported forty-five cases of bullion had been placed aboard.

PASSENGERS INTERESTED

Second only to hope for a record, passengers' interest centred on how the Queen Mary would react as she moved at her top speed of about

Quintuplets Are To Be Screened

Canadian Press

Callander, Ont., May 28.—Contract for three feature pictures starring the Dionne quintuplets was signed by the babies' guardians today with Twentieth Century-Fox films for $250,000 cash and other monetary considerations.

The agreement, coming on the quintuplets' second birthday anniversary, calls for the three pictures to be completed about the end of 1938.

The babies are guaranteed an additional $50,000 at that time if they are alive and 10 per cent of the net receipts from the films.

The contract is with the same motion picture company that produced "The Country Doctor," the girls' only previous appearance in a feature-length film.

BLACK LEGION IS TRACED FAR

U.S. Secret Service May Join Hunt in More Than Dozen States

Associated Press

Detroit, May 28.—The Black Legion, which guarded its secrets with courage and pistols and boasted it would mobilize millions of armed men in twenty-four hours, faced the possibility of United States federal as well as state investigations today.

The "mobilization," Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said, members had told him, was to be ordered in the event of a Communist uprising.

In Washington Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings indicated he would decide today whether acts of terrorism attributed to the night raiders in more than a dozen states justified intervention by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In Detroit the Wayne County circuit bench planned to decide by midday whether to order the grand jury investigation asked by Michigan's Attorney-General David H. Crowley of violent deaths, flogging and firing of buildings in the metropolitan area.

Average Interest On Alberta Bonds To Be 2½ Per Cent

Premier Aberhart, Explaining Compulsory Refunding Plan Announced Yesterday For June, Says Present Average Rate Is 4.89 Per Cent

Canadian Press

Edmonton, May 28.—The rate of 2½ per cent will be the average interest—not the general scale, as announced yesterday—under the Alberta government's plan of reducing interest rates on its public debt, it was made known today by Premier Aberhart.

"Our present average rate is 4.89 per cent," he said. "To effect economies of the amount required, we have got to cut that by half. Under our plans now the rate on our 4 per cent bonds, for instance, would be 2 per cent, while that on sixes would be 3 per cent.

The Premier indicated the new Compulsory Conversion Act, or part of it, may have to be proclaimed to enable the government to go ahead with its interest-reducing programme June 1. At first it was thought the Alberta Treasury Act gave sufficient power.

DUNNING SILENT

Ottawa, May 28.—Hon. Charles Dunning, Finance Minister, said he would not comment on Alberta's refunding scheme as announced from Edmonton until he had read the full announcement made by Premier Aberhart, and possibly not then.

Edmonton, May 28.—Alberta's government will make no move to accept lower rates of interest on the $50,000,000 owing to the province or on periodical payments due by citizens to conform with the slashed interest rates which the provincial government aims to pay to its own creditors, Premier Aberhart said today.

His statement came today following the government's announced plan to cut its interest payments, by half, effective next Monday.

Pattullo Defends Government Record

Great Progress Made in Carrying Out Platform of 1933, Premier Tells Liberal Convention; Replies Sharply to Critics of His Leadership

In a fighting speech at the federal Liberal nominating convention last night, Premier Pattullo referred to attacks which have been made on his leadership of the provincial government.

"I have heard it said that 'everybody is fine except that fellow Pattullo.' These critics have no fault to find with my colleagues but direct it at me.

"Do not forget that I chose the men in my cabinet. And I want to assure you that personally I have never been in better health in my life.

"They may think they can use this kind of propaganda to drive me out, but, oh no. If the people as a whole want me to quit then I must accept the verdict."

Speaking with his old-time rapid-fire delivery, the Premier delivered a sharp defence of his administration, and declared that of nineteen planks in the Liberal platform, except for two, the highway commission and public utilities commission proposals, both postponed for good reason, every plank had either been carried out or was in the process of being accomplished.

In a reference to the postponement of the by-elections in Omineca and Burrard, he snapped:

"I'm not afraid to take my chance anywhere, anytime, even if I get licked. And I haven't been licked yet."

The Premier was given a warm welcome by the meeting of delegates from all ward associations of the city.

Unusual Gifts Mark Birthday Of Quintuplets

As Five Ontario Girls Celebrate Second Anniversary Cheque For $1,000 Sent to Parents; Gifts to Others

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Callander, Ont., May 28.—Reversing the usual order for birthday presents, the Dionne quintuplets today presented their parents, Oliva and Elzire Dionne, with a cheque for $1,000 on the girls' second birthday. They gave smaller amounts to their spiritual adviser, their nurses and others of their hospital staff.

The presents were authorized at a meeting of the board of guardians attended by Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Welfare; Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe and Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay. Oliva Dionne, another guardian, was not present.

PARENTS NOT AT PARTY

The father and Mrs. Dionne decided against accepting an invitation to their babies' two-year birthday party this afternoon.

They refused a similar invitation to the quintuplets' first birthday last year.

Nova Scotia Commission Learns Papers Listing Operation Results Destroyed By Trapped Men to Make Smoke Signal

Halifax, May 28.—Records of the operations of the Moose River Gold Mine were burned underground to start a smoke signal after the Easter Sunday cave-in, Alfred Scadding told a government commission gathered around his hospital bed today.

SOCIAL CREDIT PARTY FORMED

Manifesto For B.C. Issued After Vancouver Meeting; Officers Named

Canadian Press

Vancouver, May 28.—Communism, Fascism, financial dictatorship and all forms of regimentation of the people today were condemned in a manifesto issued by the British Columbia Social Credit League, which was made an official political party in British Columbia at its first convention here Tuesday.

The manifesto, adopted at last night's closing session, sets forth the aims and fundamental principles of the league.

"We oppose socialization of economic activities and stand for the institutions of private property, personal liberty and individual enterprise," the manifesto read. "Except for the suppression of financial racketeering, fraudulent promotions and, where they occur, anti-social activities of monopolies, we oppose government interference in private business."

It said the organization stands for payment of a "national dividend" to every citizen and a "national discount" to the producer as a reimbursement in return for a similar reduction in price to the consumer, but made no mention of the actual amounts involved.

TOWNSEND CRITICIZED

The Townsend plan came under sharp criticism from several delegates at the meeting as being in opposition to sound Social Credit policy.

One resolution passed warned the public against "dividend plans which are to be financed by any form of taxation or by the depreciation of the value of money by any means."

"Expedients such as these are not Social Credit and are utterly at variance with Social Credit principles," it said.

Wages would be raised by lowering the price of goods under the Social Credit plan and goods purchased from foreign countries would be paid for by an exchange of Canadian goods, the manifesto said. Imposition of taxes should be made only with the approval of the people.

The meeting approved a motion reaffirming the party's "complete confidence in the integrity and technical authority" of Major C. H. Douglas, founder of the Social Credit principles.

A committee, comprising K. H. Smith, William Savage, J. Maclurg, H. E. Torey, William Rose, F. Paynter, G. Brown, Mrs. J. S. Adams, Mrs. E. Hetman and R. C. Murphy, was elected at last night's meeting.

have been in contact with the children."

It was also decided at the meeting of the guardians to change the name of the youngsters' home from "Dafoe Hospital" to "Dafoe Nursery."

Unspecified amounts were voted to Father J. McNally, the quintuplets' spiritual adviser; Nurses Jacqueline Noel and Yvonne Leroux; Grace Demers, their cook; Laurie Bissette and Eva Gravelle, housemaids, and Provincial Constables Burke, Fraser and Cusson, their guards.

MANY MESSAGES

Cards and letters from all parts of Canada and the United States and from numerous other countries arrived at Callander, conveying congratulations on the girls' second birthday.

A number of presents also arrived from various places.

RADIO BROADCAST

To Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, singing and dancing on an international hookup are not as important as facts and figures that prove the continuing good health of the quintuplets.

So today, while others prayed the famous youngsters would coo and tap at the proper moments during their second birthday celebration this evening, the quiet little country doctor took time out to keep the hospital chart straight.

He said his bouncing miracle babies are in better health than ever, that although they have not quite reached the height and weight figures the child training books set for singly born two-year-olds they are so near them only a quibbler would fuss about the difference.

The quintuplets are within 2.2 pounds of the weight the books say a singly born born child who weighs 7.16 pounds at birth should scale at two years. And these infants were not, as everyone knows, singly born, and arrived two months before they should have.

In other words, the tiny infants who were given no chance to live more than a few hours after their birth May 28, 1934, have almost caught up with the book babies.

Today the Dionne youngsters averaged 23.8 pounds in weight compared with the twenty-six pounds the normal baby weighs at two years. The average height is only an inch less than the normal height of 32.2.

DIET CAREFULLY CHOSEN

They have gained only eight ounces in the past month, but Dr. Dafoe thinks that is enough. He is keeping them on a diet that is planned to build their bodies rather than put fat on them.

The quintuplets' weights in pounds and ounces today with changes from April 28 follow:

Yvonne, twenty-five pounds, four-ounce loss; Annette, twenty-five pounds ten ounces, ten-ounce gain; Cecile, twenty-five pounds, unchanged; Emilie, twenty-three pounds six ounces, six-ounce gain; Marie, twenty-one pounds six ounces, unchanged; total 119 pounds.

Canadian Press

London, May 28.—The London Daily Mail, in an editorial today, draws attention to the second birthday of the Dionne quintuplets, Canada's world-famous sisters.

Commenting on plans for observing the birthday at Callander, Ont., The Daily Mail says the gurgles of the quintuplets are being broadcast throughout the Dominion. Though they can only babble, they have £6,000 each to their credit.

"Their rivals here, the Quadruplets, are also going strong," the paper continues. "They are six months old today and have come through the most critical period of their lives."

The quadruplets to which The Mail refers were born last November 28 to Mrs. W. Miles of London. Quadruplets also were born in London in October last year to Mrs. V. Harmsworth, but two of them died shortly after.

May 12 Next Year Date Of Coronation

London retail stores anticipate the best trade in twenty years. London dressmakers will be especially benefited while hotels and resaurants, with the enormous number of visitors expected, are looking forward to a period of heavy business.

FOLIAGE IS FACTOR

It was explained that May 12, 1937, was chosen as Coronation Day because tree foliage will not be heavy then. At any later date foliage might obscure the vision of huge throngs which will line the route of the King's procession.

The final date was fixed at a meeting of the Privy Council. Dominion councillors attended.

It was erroneously reported earlier this week the coronation would take place May 27 of next year.

cates was to increase the purchasing power and the flow of credit. He made his statement following a conference between several members of the cabinet and a joint delegation from the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and the Alberta division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The certificates would be issued each week as wages, the head of the province's Social Credit government stated, and a 2 per cent stamp would have to be put on each certificate each week. The government hoped to redeem the certificates at the end of each month, Mr. Aberhart added.

The latter feature was an answer to the main objection against certificates from the delegation. They wanted to know how they could purchase goods outside the province with certificates.

"We intend to be able to redeem the certificates at the end of each month, thus providing the currency for wholesalers and retailers who make payments outside the province," the Premier declared.

LIMITED APPLICATION

Premier Aberhart said the certificates plan would begin to operate in connection with projects under the Public Works Department, mainly road work, but would not be applied in construction of main highways. Workers on rural, district and secondary roads would receive part of their wages in certificates.

He refused to divulge other details of the plan on which Hon. Lucien Marnard, minister without portfolio, has ben working for some time. Actual date of inauguration of the certificates system still is undecided.

Moose River Mine Records Burned

Grant, counsel for the Magill estate, questioned the witness.

"How did you come to give this information today?" he asked.

Phillips said he had read newspaper reports which quoted Henderson as saying no gold had come from the mine.

Canadian Press

Halifax, May 28.—A government commission heard evidence today that Herman Magill, Toronto barrister, who died of pneumonia in the Moose River gold mine before rescue workers saved his two companions, Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding of Toronto, was planning to sell the property to New York interests when the fatal cave-in occurred Easter Sunday night.

James M. Wall, solicitor for the Department of Mines, testified Magill and F. D. Henderson, the mine foreman, came to his office March 4 and again about the first of April.

Later Wall said, "There was nothing said to me that would lead me or any reasonable man to believe there was anything going on at the mine except dewatering."

HEARINGS ON THE B.N.A. ACT

Senate Sends Provincial Finance Amendment to Committee For Study

Ottawa, May 28.—The joint parliamentary resolution to Westminster for amendment of the British North America Act was before the Senate banking and commerce committee today as a result of action taken by the upper house yesterday.

A resolution referring it to the committee was passed without division. Senator Raoul Dandurand, Liberal leader, accepted the resolution as proposed by Senator J. J. Donnelly, Conservative, Ontario, and said he had no objection to representatives of provincial governments going before the committee to give their views on constitutional change.

He said the attorneys-general of the provinces had approved the resolution in precise terms, but that representatives of public bodies and individuals also would be heard by the committee.

The form and procedure being followed in the present instance was the same pursued in every amendment to the constitution since Confederation, Senator Dandurand declared. There was no danger confederation might be disrupted by the proposed amendment.

NEW BRUNSWICK TAX

Senator Dandurand disagreed with an assertion the New Brunswick corporation tax was an indirect tax and therefore ultra vires the province.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, suggested the government leader go to his colleagues with a view to getting another proposal. He did not believe if the various provincial attorneys-general were approached they would stand by the resolution as drafted.

BALANCING OF BUDGETS

"This address is to meet the needs of the provinces who clearly could not balance their budgets and to prevent them from defaulting and maintaining Canada's credit," Senator Dandurand declared. One province already had defaulted, and while he was quite confident the Dominion as a whole could stand the financial strain, what would happen if two or three more provinces defaulted?

In the past provincial borrowing had been a matter of the ability of the provinces to borrow, Senator Dandurand said. "But hereafter it will be their ability to pay."

He denied the suggestion the Dominion was not trusting the provinces in the amendment respecting guarantee of provincial loans with the provinces hypothecating their subsidies and other securities.

TOWNSEND IS SENT TO TRIAL

The standing vote on the contempt resolution was 271 to 41.

Those named with Dr. Townsend were Rev. Clinton Wunder of New York and J. B. Kiefer of Chicago.

A score or more members supported Representative J. D. Monaghan, Montana Democrat, in efforts to stop House approval of the resolution submitted by Chairman Bell of the committee investigating old age pensions plans.

HOUSE HEARING URGED

Amid considerable confusion before the vote, Representative Blanton, Texas Democrat, insisted any contempt action against the old age pension leader should be tried in the House instead of in a federal court.

"There is a contempt action against the House and it should be punished by the House," Blanton said.

Speaker Byrns ruled Blanton out of order on the ground that only a committee report, and not a resolution calling for action, had been submitted.

thirty-two knots (thirty-six and a half land miles an hour).

On the first leg of the trip, across the Channel from Southampton to Cherbourg, the liner attained a speed of twenty-eight knots last night with extremely little vibration.

As she turned out of Cherbourg early today and steamed west into the Atlantic the vibration at this stage of the voyage had been less than normal, in the opinion of some experienced travelers, for a vessel of 80,773 tons.

The sky, overcast at the start, cleared later and the crossing to Cherbourg was smooth.

NIGHT SCENES

During the night all public rooms of the liner were crowded, the passengers moving through the many brightly-lighted special lounges and decks.

Today was the first of the four days at sea. The French liner Normandie's record westward crossing was made in four days three hours thirteen minutes from Bishop's Rock, at the west entrance of the English Channel, to the Ambrose Lightship at the entrance to New York harbor.

I. W. SOLLOWAY FACES CHARGE

The warrant was issued on instructions of the securities commissioner. Solloway was formerly head of the now defunct firm of Solloway, Mills and Co.

Mr. Godfrey said he had ordered his senior investigator, Stanley Thompson, to inquire into the facts of a recent judgment handed down by O. E. Lennox, assistant master of the Supreme Court of Ontario. The action against Solloway before the master was brought by E. R. C. Clarkson, liquidator of the Solloway firm.

Solloway was reported arrested in Montreal by two officers there and held for Inspector Boyd of the Ontario Provincial Police criminal investigation department, expected to return to Toronto at once with the former broker.

AIR SERVICE TO B.C. INCREASED

Seattle, May 28.—The United Air Lines today announced the addition of one round trip daily to Portland and one to Vancouver, B.C., to provide the most frequent "commuting" service ever offered those cities. They will start June 1.

R. H. Ahrens, district traffic manager, said the new schedule of five round trips a day to Portland and two to Vancouver was made necessary by "capacity business."

The fifth round trip on the Portland-Seattle run will leave Portland at 5.30 p.m., arrive here at 6.40 p.m. and leave at 7.45 p.m., arriving at Portland again at 8.55 p.m.

The new Seattle-Vancouver trip will be a departure here at 8.30 a.m., arrival in Vancouver at 9.25 a.m. and departure at 9.40 a.m., returning here at 10.35 a.m.

Officers in command of the British forces reported they had suffered no casualties in the brisk clash.

The shooting brought the death list for the day to four. Earlier in the day a British policeman was wounded fatally in the old city of Jerusalem.

The policeman, Robert Beard, shot in the stomach, died soon after being removed to a hospital.

Earlier in the day, with calm apparently restored to Palestine by the rigorous campaign against terrorists throughout the Holy Land, police had discarded their steel helmets in favor of sun hats.

matters were discussed. At the close of those conferences last week it was stated decisions would be reached later.

LOAN COUNCIL QUESTION

It is understood Mr. Aberhart and his ministers refused to bind the province with respect to future borrowings as involved in the Loan Council plan and that Mr. Dunn was equally firm in his stand that no further loans for general purposes would be granted Alberta except on Loan Council terms.

With respect to the proposed compulsory refunding of Alberta securities at a lower interest rate, it is known the federal treasury had hoped Mr. Aberhart would leave this in abeyance until further consideration had been given the question of Dominion-provincial relations.

CREDIT MAINTENANCE

Partial repudiation of indebtedness such as proposed by the Social Credit government is a step against which successive Dominion Governments have taken a definite stand in the interests of credit maintenance. There has been no question, however, as to the power of a province to take such action.

Government officials here would not comment on the possible result of Alberta's action on other securities.

When compulsory reduction of the interest rate on the public debt of Alberta to an average of 2½ per cent was announced yesterday by Premier Aberhart and Hon. Charles Cockroft, Provincial Treasurer, it was said in Edmonton this would mean a saving of $2,400,000 annually for the province.

The whole $160,000,000 public debt of the province, with possible exception of $25,000,000 owing to the federal government, will come under the new rate. It includes the $9,000,000 in provincial savings certificates on which payment was stopped last August when the present government took office.

Mr. Cockroft made the announcement after a cabinet meeting.

SCATTERED OVER MONTHS

Holders of interest coupons who present these after June 1 will be paid the former rate up to May 31 and the new rate as interest payments become due thereafter. Interest payments are scattered over various months in the year. Interest due June 1 on several issues of about $16,700,000 will be paid at the rate of from 4½ to 6 per cent.

"We as a government," said Mr. Cockroft, "are anxious to submit to them (the bondholders) that it is impossible for the government to pay a higher rate of interest, having imposed so much in taxes on the people of the province."

OPPOSITION ORGANIZED

Today holders of Alberta bonds were reported organizing against the government's move. Trustees of organizations holding provincial securities counted up the losses of those organizations. Edmonton investment dealers were called together for an emergency meeting. Edmonton and other municipalities found themselves in danger of heavy losses through decreased values of bonds and of accruing interest. In the bond markets, offers were all down and there were no bids at all.

KING TO VISIT SCOTTISH HOME

Plans September Holiday at Balmoral; Other Royalty Also Going

Canadian Press Cable

London, May 28.—King Edward is planning to spend several weeks annually in the late summer at Balmoral in Scotland, as his father did before him.

It was learned today that His Majesty will probably remain there for two or three weeks in September. On such visits the sovereign and his nearest kinsmen always wear the kilt.

Balmoral, like Sandringham, is not crown property. It was bought by the Prince Consort, Queen Victoria's husband, and during the latter's long widowhood was equal in her affections with Osborne on the Isle of Wight.

The castle was entirely rebuilt when it became a royal possession.

The Duke and Duchess of York probably will be there in August, with the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester staying nearby.

TEXTILE PLANT TAXES GO UP

Federal Inquiry Commission Is Given Figures at Valleyfield, Quebec

Canadian Press

Valleyfield, Que., May 28. — Taxes paid by Montreal Cottons Limited to the municipal corporation of Valleyfield came under scrutiny of the Turgeon textile inquiry commission yesterday.

The federal commission, investigating the Valleyfield plant of the company, was shown by-laws and regulations adopted in 1933 and 1934 when the company and the municipality were at odds over taxes and the evaluation of the company's property.

Charles Corbeil, secretary of the municipal corporation of Valleyfield, testified an agreement had been reached whereby the company paid $45,000 in taxes in 1933 and 1934 and would pay $40,000 for the five subsequent years.

The municipal secretary produced a by-law of 1920 when it was agreed the company would pay taxes of $21,000 a year for twelve years. He produced several other by-laws of previous years, one of 1901 stating the company was accorded certain privileges on condition a certain number of persons was employed and paid a "reasonable and living" wage.

Honore Sauve, a winder in the plant, testified he worked a forty-eight-hour week for $10.75 a week. In previous work in another department he had worked a twelve-hour day with less pay than he received at present, he said.

Another winder, Joseph Cote, testified he worked a ten-hour day with a fifteen-day salary ranging between $22 and $25, including overtime. Five years ago, he said, he worked periods of 122 hours for $22.

Eight other employees also testified. Several told Commissioner Turgeon they were dissatisfied with wages and working hours. One employee said he had worked at the Valleyfield mills thirty-five years but was not receiving pension funds.

W. G. E. Aird, general manager, said the man's name was on the pension list and his case was being considered by company officials.

ARCHBISHOP SEES BIG WAR DANGERS

Associated Press

London, May 28. — The Archbishop of Canterbury yesterday voiced "grievous disappointment no Christian voice was heard in Italy to remonstrate" against the use of poison gas in the Italo-Ethiopian war.

The archbishop said he considered the international situation "more restless, more confused and more pregnant with danger to the establishment of peace than at any time within our memory."

The world, the archbishop declared, "is suffering the bitterest of all humiliations, the humiliations of impotence" in the face of "a great wrong committed by a European power against an almost defenceless African people."

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS

Abbotsford, B.C., May 28. — The coroner's jury which inquired into the deaths of George Dickenson and Mrs. Ethel McLean of Yale, B.C., who were suffocated when pinned underneath their car after it turned over in a ditch east of here, yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death.

French Leaders To Greet King Edward

Canadian Press

Paris, May 28.—President Albert Lebrun will receive King Edward when the Vimy Ridge Memorial to the Canadian soldiers killed in France is unveiled July 26.

Possibly Leon Blum, who most probably will be Premier then, also will be present when the monarch arrives from London.

Arrangements are in the making to enable the 5,000 or 6,000 Canadians who are expected to visit various parts of France, especially the regions of the Loire where lived the forebears of many French-Canadians.

Fewer Using Silver Dollars

Director of U.S. Mint Reports Large Coins Fading Away

Associated Press

Washington, May 28.—Mrs. Nellie Tayler Ross, director of the Mint relates sadly that the silver dollar is fading from the American scene.

"With production of domestic coinage experiencing one of the greatest years in history," she said yesterday, "the poor old silver dollar just does not seem to be able to keep up the pace."

The United States mints coined 202,488,694 more pieces last year than the year before, yet the silver dollar showed an increase of but 5,443. Production of dimes jumped 54,295,000 and nickles 52,962,997.

Mrs. Ross advanced these reasons why the popularity of the dollar is waning:

1. Woman's active participation in business.

2. Invention of the automobile.

3. Wider circulation of poker chips.

"Once women have taken a place in business and national affairs," she said, "they have more reason to carry money about with them and they find it too difficult to lug the heavy dollars around."

She added that the automobile, by displacing the horse, has dealt a blow to the silver dollar.

"Horsemen," she said, "liked to carry silver dollars."

Instead of poker chips—which were unavailable in some frontier parts of the nation—silver dollars were often used, she explained.

Death Sentence At New York

John Fiorenza Found Guilty of Killing of Mrs. Nancy Titterton

New York, May 28.—John Fiorenza was convicted yesterday of murder in the first degree in the bathtub slaying of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton. The jury delibated more than eighteen hours.

The conviction carries the death penalty.

Mrs. Titterton, wife of a radio executive, was strangled and attacked in her Beekman Place apartment on Good Friday, April 10

Fiorenza, twenty-four, upholster's helper, was accused of calling at the apartment during the morning, on the pretense of inquiring about a love seat.

Fiorenza went on trial in general sessions court before Judge Charles C. Nott, and a jury a week ago last Monday.

His attorney, Henry Klauber, contended Fiorenza was insane, and hence not responsible for his acts, and in summing up his case argued the state of New York was morally guilty for the crime, since Fiorenza had been released from the Elmira reformatory, although a state psychiatrist had called him potentially insane.

SAYS ANNUITY CHARGES LOW

Canadian Press

Ottawa, May 28. — Professor M. A. Mackenzie, University of Toronto and official of the Teachers' Insurance and Annuity Federation of America, a Carnegie organization, yesterday told a special Senate committee "unquestionably rates charged to annuitants under the Canadian government annuities scheme are too low." The committee is investigating operation of the government plan at the instigation of Hon. F. B. Black, Conservative, Sackville, N.B.

From 20 to 25 per cent higher rates were charged to annuitants by commercial companies in Canada and the United States and under the British plan in England, Professor Mackenzie said.

Professor Mackenzie advocated two major steps be taken for an upward revision of rates for future Canadian government annuity contracts. First, there should be a check up of the Dominion Government's tables of mortality among its 26,000 annuitants as against Canadian and United States commercial company rates and those under the British government plan. Secondly, consideration should be given to the question if the 4 per cent interest rate being paid by the Dominion to its annuitants was not too high compared with 3 or 3½ per cent rates by commercial companies.

VICTORIA SHOULD VOTE LIBERAL

THE LIBERALS OF VICTORIA AT their nominating convention last night paid Mr. C. J. McDowell an impressive tribute when they selected him, on the first ballot, to be their standard-bearer at the forthcoming by-election. With a slate of four in the running the nominee had a plurality of twelve over his three friendly competitors.

In the general election last October Mr. McDowell polled 6,429 votes against the victor's, the late Mr. Plunkett, 7,459 votes. There were four aspirants—Professor King Gordon, carrying the colors of the Canadian Commonwealth Federation, and Mr. P. E. George, running as a "Reconstructionist." It is to be noted, by the way, that Mr. Gordon polled forty-two more votes for the C.C.F. than Mr. McDowell polled for the Liberals. It is also worth while noting that the contest last October in all of the 245 constituencies which make up the House of Commons was a test of public opinion in regard to the manner in which the business of the people of Canada had been conducted since the King government left office in 1930. As The Times said on October 15: "Never before since Confederation has a federal political party won so sweeping a victory at the polls as that of the Liberals yesterday . . . never before has either of the major parties had so many supporters in the House of Commons as the government of Mr. Mackenzie King will have, or so few as Mr. Bennett will have."

Victoria obviously thought it wise to send another Conservative to Ottawa to represent them. True, their representative did his best against odds which he knew he had to face. To be a back-bencher in opposition and take it and like it challenges the fortitude—at least the political fortitude—of the most wiry parliamentary campaigner.

On June 8 the people of this city will have to make up their minds what they want. They will have to put three questions to themselves—and they are these: Do we want to send to Ottawa a representative who will, to use a colloquialism, have "the ear of the government?" Do we want to send to Ottawa a representative who will join former Premier Bennett's corporal's guard? Do we want to send to Ottawa a representative who will add one to Mr. Woodworth's seven followers—out of 245?

These are the questions which the electors of this constituency will have to answer when they go into the polling booths next Monday week and take their pencils to mark their ballots. Surely they will say to themselves that their duty to their city, yes, and in their own interests, will be to vote Liberal.

MAKE DREAMS COME TRUE

THE COMMENCEMENT ORATORS already have begun to advance to the edge of the platform to tell the youthful graduates what life is all about, and it is to be hoped that at least a few of them will remember to point out that the world today is more profoundly in need of old-fashioned, idealistic dreamers than it has been for many generations.

To be sure, this sort of advice is not popular. The commencement orator usually feels he has done his duty if he rings the changes on the old platitudes, such as "Honesty is the best policy."

After he has done that for half an hour, and has reminded his listeners that the fate of the nation rests in their hands, he takes a sip of water and sits down, conscious of a job well done. But the plain fact remains that, unless we can get back to the seeing of visions and the dreaming of dreams, there is precious little hope for our country or for ourselves.

We gave up dreams and visions and in their place we went hook, line, and sinker for the idea that the pursuit of riches was the end of wisdom. And the mad dance of the 1929 boom, culminating in a crash that almost wrecked the world, was the logical consequence. Now the point about our fumbling efforts to rescue ourselves from that crash is that, materially, we lack nothing.

We still have the ability to produce wealth: the soil, the mines, the factories, the forests, and all the rest, which would automatically guarantee prosperity if human life were anything that could be reduced to a simple profit-and-loss statement.

What we do not have is the ability to use these things in a way to attain human happiness. And what is that lack but the lack of the old ability to dream dreams and to make them come true?

UNEMPLOYMENT AND YOUTH

THERE IS NOW MUCH MORE TO THE problem of unemployment than merely getting former workers back on the payrolls. Since the start of the depression another generation has been poured out from homes and schools to find jobs scarce.

This is emphasized by the figures just issued by the National Industrial Conference Board in the United States. The high point of unemployment, according to these figures, was reached in March, 1933, with a total of 13,500,000. By May, 1936, the total for the country had been reduced to 9,600,000, a drop of 3,900,000. However, during these three years normal population gains increased the country's total of potential workers by 2,000,000. It is pointed out that if these new job seekers had not come along, unemployment would have shrunk by nearly 6,000,000.

The proportions represented in the foregoing roughly hold good for Canada. In them are to be found reasons for the earnest interest young Canadians are taking in social and economic questions.

HISTORICAL TELEGRAMS

"FOR ACTION," ENTERPRISING TELEgraph companies advertise, "send a wire." Statesmen with a yen for monkey-wrench throwing can testify to the effectiveness of such messages. An outstanding instance was the telegram Wilhelm Hohenzollern as Kaiser in 1896 sent to President Paul Kruger of the Transvaal Republic congratulating him on the capture of a British raiding party under Dr. Jameson—the famous Jameson Raid. The result was nearly war between Britain and Germany.

In the tradition of his father, Friedrich Wilhelm, former German Crown Prince, the other day telegraphed Mussolini: "Accept my congratulations on victorious ending of Ethiopian war. Long live King! Long live Duce!" It proved to be another action-getting telegram. Mussolini, with visions of Germany being the first great power to recognize his Ethiopian empire, hopefully sped the Italian ambassador to the Wilhelmstrasse. There was a momentary stir in diplomatic quarters. But for the ex-Crown Prince it has brought an unexpected result. Hitler has warned him that any further political meddling would result in his expulsion from the Reich. Germany, courting Britain for political support and a loan, can not afford to let anything pass that might irritate London.

Then, about the same time, there was another message by wire to Mussolini. It was sent by the Fascistically-inclined Prince von Starhemberg, Vice-Chancellor of Austria. It read: "Congratulate you from my whole heart on great triumph of Italian Fascism over barbarism, democratic dishonesty and barbarity." This proved to be very much of an action-getting telegram. It has since cost Von Starhemberg his place in the government and forced the disbanding of his Heimwehr army of 150,000 armed men. Chancellor Schuschnigg could not risk any suggestion being carried to Britain, France or Germany that such was the attitude of Austria on the Italian issue.

Telegrams do get action, even if it is backfiring on impetuous statesmen who resort to them.

MAN GOT FIRST FOOTHOLD

IN THESE DAYS OF GRIM NATIONAL and international stress, it is comforting to be assured, at least, that the insects are not likely to crowd man off the earth. Since some entomologists have said that the insects might do exactly that, the assurance is worth getting.

The good word comes from Brayton Eddy, scientist and philosopher. Of course, says Mr. Eddy, the insects have better physical equipment than man, but they require special conditions to prosper. Moreover, the insects are their own worst enemies, adding self-destruction to the exterminating efforts of humanity.

"If the insects wished to maintain their supremacy on earth," Eddy explains, "the time to have done it was when man was getting a foothold here. Insect life antedates human life by many millions of years."

So, after all, life does have its little blessings.

PRESERVE OUR FORESTS

IT IS GRATIFYING TO NOTE THAT, under the auspices of the Canadian Forestry Association, the most determined efforts to keep Canada as free as possible of forest fires this year have been instituted in all parts of the Dominion. Adequate supplies of fire pumps, canoes, railway speeders, have equipped the fire ranger forces, and all is being made ready for the two unknown events: what the weather will be like and what the public will do. The latter element represents the 91 per cent cause of all forest fires. Men with lighted matches and tobacco, settlers clearing their land, campers and their cooking fires—such innocent-looking human actions—annually create a deadly harvest of ruined forests, dried-up waterways and homeless families.

Nearly 5,000 rangers on the "line of fire" across Canada are appealing to the public to join hands with them as protectors of the forests and streams. In many districts this friendly union of the rangers and those who travel in the woods for work or pleasure has succeeded in virtually outlawing the fire fiend and has kept the woods green and growing, without serious blemish, for many years past.

SAINT JOHN'S CLAIMS

The Saint John Telegraph-Journal

If the closer proximity of Montreal to Europe than New York would "make it difficult for New York to compete if a free port were established at Montreal," as argued by Senator J. H. Rainville of that city, how much more advantageous would be the establishment of such a free foreign trade zone at the Port of Saint John? Being still nearer to Europe than Montreal, it has the added advantage of being open to ocean traffic every day in the year. A third very important factor is that it is the nearest national port on the Atlantic seaboard to the more densely populated areas of the Dominion. Strategically Saint John is most ideally suited for the establishment of a free port enterprise.

LOOKING UP

The Edmonton Journal

How well the British Columbia lumber industry has been faring of late is shown by some figures that have just been published. In the first quarter of 1936 the record volume attained in the corresponding period of 1934 was increased by 11 per cent, and prices have also risen materially in the interval. Shipments to Britain were nearly ten times what they were prior to the conclusion of the Ottawa agreements. But the chief recent gain has been in the business done in the United States, following the completion of the reciprocity arrangements. The neighboring country took 39,859,232 feet of lumber from B.C. between January 1 and April 1, as against only 617,968 in the same months of 1935. There was also an improvement of 2,276,902 in the sales elsewhere than in Britain and the United States.

Loose Ends

Other countries would appreciate it, but we don't—Our instinct for justice remains strong—and in Russia you must be gay.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

MAJOR POET

A MAJOR POET—as I have said repeatedly here every spring, so far without any tangible result—is needed to celebrate the glory of our island broom. If they had broom like this in any of the older countries, the major poets would have written a whole literature about it. If there were only one plant of broom in the world it would be housed in a glass conservatory and people would travel all around the world to gaze at the wonder of its golden bloom.

If the single plant were in Russia, the Soviet government would erect a huge glass palace about it and protect it as it protects the poor unburied corpse of Lenin, and vast armies of Russian soldiers and young communists would march past it once a year in the blossoming season, and Mr. Stalin would say that the blossoms were the symbol of Russia's sure growth and the flowering of its new society.

If they had broom like this in Japan, there would be a great spring broom festival to the obscure gods; and the elder statesmen, their feet bare, would carry bouquets of blossom and lay them on the shrines of their ancestors, and Japanese soldiers would carry sprigs of broom in their hats, as a sign of immortality and the superiority of Japanese culture, when they slaughtered the Chinese.

If they had broom like this in Italy there would be wild celebrations in broom time, with love making and dancing on the streets, and Mussolini, his arms full of broom, would address a million people, telling them that this radiant yellow blossom was the symbol of Italy's enlightenment of Ethiopia with tanks, bayonets and poison gas.

If they had this broom in Germany they would celebrate the blossom season with parades, marching troops, and a good old-fashioned beer guzzle, and Hitler would address ten million people and tell them that the broom would grow only in the good soil of Germany—a proof of German superiority over all other breeds.

If they had this broom in the United States there would be a celebration in every city, and in Washington the unfortunate President would have to think up a new speech about it every spring, when he crowned the broom queen—a lady of marked curves, whose photograph in a bathing suit would be in every newspaper in the country—and they would read the Declaration of Independence, and Lincoln's Gettysburg speech, and everybody would go to the movies in the evening and buy an ice cream soda on the way home.

But in Victoria, where we have the broom, where it surges up on all sides, where it flows along the highway like a golden stream and spurts out of every barren piece of ground like a fountain frozen in mid-air, where it covers all the marks of men's desolation and flowers where nothing else can live—here nobody pays any attention to it. Here everybody thinks I am a little mad for mentioning it.

THE LAW

IT IS INTERESTING to observe the public's reaction to a sentence of seven years and lashes for a boy who tried to be a burglar in Victoria recently. Apparently this sentence has brought a strong wave of resentment as being comparatively far too heavy.

It is interesting, and encouraging, also, for the public's respect for our courts is just as important as the respect of criminals. It is the public's respect for our courts rather than the criminal's that keeps society going on in an ordered state and saves it from anarchy. If this respect were ever lost, it wouldn't matter how efficient the police might be, or how severe the sentences passed on criminals, society would soon disintegrate.

It is the knowledge of equality before the law, the assurance of equal justice regardless of a man's circumstances that makes our form of civilization possible. Should the courts do something which seems to strike at this equal justice, the whole basis of society, its confidence in itself, suffers. Here the public has not forgotten that while a boy has been sentenced to seven years with lashes for burglary, several citizens of British Columbia have lately been sentenced to about half that, without lashes, for killing other citizens outright because they didn't like them. This tends to make ignorant people suspect that the law may be holding property more sacred than human life.

The protests which have followed the case of the local burglar show how deeply rooted in our stock is the instinct for equal justice. This thing is basic with us, our greatest contribution to human progress, the thing which keeps our system alive.

TOO GAY

IN RUSSIA lately they have turned joyous, by law. After the first hard years of the Revolution, when there was a grave scarcity of everything, conditions have got easier over there, and the state is relaxing its old pressure.

But it is not satisfied merely to let the gloom lift. It can't wait for that. It insists on providing the sunshine, with typical efficiency. You are not merely told to forget your troubles. You are commanded to be happy. Mr. Stalin has told them to be gay and nobody dares to be anything else. Apparently you must be gay whether you want to or not—in the manner of the Communist orator who was telling the boys on the street corner that "comes the revolution and you all eat strawberries," and when a little man in the back row objected that he didn't like strawberries, the speaker replied in this withering fashion: "Comes the revolution and you dam' well eat strawberries and like 'em."

In Moscow today you must be gay and like it. "Dancing," says the Moscow correspondent of The New York Times, "became a sacred duty." Everybody dances in Moscow. They have dance floors in the movie houses so you can dance between pictures. They have dance floors in the restaurants, so you can dance between courses. Everybody is dancing as part of the Revolution. You owe it to Russia, to communism, to dance and show that communists are really very happy people at heart.

This is fine, but I doubt that it would suit us. It gives me grave doubts about the advisability of revolution at all. A lot of us don't like dancing, and strawberries give us skin irritation. For us communism is likely to mean only sore feet and hives. It almost turns me against the whole idea.

Besides, we have so accustomed ourself to gloom in this country, that even in our wildest moments of celebration, when pleasantly jingled in our Esquimalt beer parlors, most of us look as if we were attending a funeral.

We are just naturally a blue lot. Rather than strawberries and dancing we prefer to sit in deep dejection, cursing the government and telling ourselves that our whole system is washed up. Our supreme happiness is to be miserable. We might as well give up the idea of revolution because we seem to lack the instinct for it.

NEW HYDRO PLAN

Toronto, May 28 (Canadian Press)—Ontario hydro-electric commission yesterday announced it was proceeding with preparatory plans for diversion of the Ogoki River in the northwestern part of the province into the Great Lakes. Fifty thousand horsepower could be developed under the plan, and the water levels in lakes Huron, Michigan and Erie increased by two inches.

These letters must be plainly written on one side of the paper only, and must be accompanied by the name and addresses of the writers, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.

Letters will not be re-written for publication. If they are not legible no attempt will be made to read them.

Letters not used will not be returned to the writers.

Letters containing offensive personal reflections will not be printed.

These rules, which henceforth will be carried out absolutely, are designed as much for the protection of our patient readers as for that of The Times.

CAUTION!

The Times will not assume responsibility for the return to the writers of articles sent for publication in the Correspondence Column or anywhere else in this newspaper, whether they are published or not, unless they have been specially solicited.

TOO SEVERE

To the Editor:—Just another one who thinks the sentence of young King was too severe. Our laws have to be obeyed, our homes have to be protected, but there is a medium to everything.

F. G.

IS SHOCKED

To the Editor:—I am sure that most mothers would like to say thank you to Dean Quainton, C. G. MacKenzie, Dr. D. M. Baillie, E. K. Middleton, Hans Kroeger and to all holding the opinion that the recently imposed sentence of Jack King was decidedly too harsh. In reverse, they must feel shocked by the views of W. B. Lanigan, R. E. Dawson and N. L. Haywood. One thinks ten lashes too few and never mentions the seven years also imposed. He states that similar disciplinary exercise on him in his younger days had wholesome results. Certainly, it did not instil the milk of human kindness in his veins. I have had a lot to do with children, and have found that where the rod was mightier than love, these same children lied and bullied the weaker ones the most. Another writer desires ten lashes each Sunday for the culprit—and, I suppose, he would like to have twenty allotted to him on Christmas Day to commemorate the birth of our Saviour who came to teach "love" and "kindness." After receiving the "medicine" for several Sundays the patient would no doubt be cut to pieces and so escape the earthly punishment of gentlemen of that ilk.

A third writer takes up the cudgels on the behalf of elderly ladies, who, living alone, must be protected from the possibility (extremely remote) of night prowlers entering their domiciles. Why undue fear on their behalf? Vancouver Island possesses a very efficient police force, and it is very rare that prowlers make an entry. My home has been entered twice, and I would rather lose all I have than feel I had anything to do in the way of getting a young boy so severe a sentence.

Of course, all such offenders should be punished, but "man's inhumanity to man" still shocks us by its ferociousness. Let us hope that when our own time comes to receive the final judgment, the Judge will show us understanding and leniency.

A. G. BROTHERS.

THANKS!

To the Editor:—May I take a small space in your paper to express my sincere thanks to all those who gave so much time and assistance on my behalf during the recent queen contest. I also wish to thank all members of the queen committee for their untiring efforts on the occasion.

MAY CLARKE.

MEXICAN FECUNDITY

To the Editor:—Should not the test for every immigrant coming to your Dominion, or to our United States, be: "What is your value as seedstock for future citizens?"

The real menace of Mexican immigration, for example, is the fecundity of the Amerind (American-Indian) peon. The "biggest family" contest, recently conducted by a Mexico City newspaper, was won by a mother of thirty-six living children. This commission's study of Mexican families migrating northward showed an average of plus nine children. The American family is stabilized at about three. An American couple will, at a three rate, produce twenty-seven great-grandchildren. A Mexican peon couple will, at a nine rate, produce 729 great-grandchildren. The Mexicans now here constitute about four times the number of the original slave nucleus from which descended our some 10,000,000 negroes.

Mexican legislation, requiring 90 per cent of all corporation employees to be Mexican, has stimulated the trek northward of Americans heretofore carrying on her industries. By such legislation, Mexico is automatically estopped from making any complaint, should the United States finally enact against Mexico the same quota maintained against white Europe.

Being of Yorkshire descent, the writer thought your readers might be interested in the above facts. Your immigration problem and ours is identical in that it is a fight to maintain Nordic living standards.

DROPS LOSER ON LOSER

Declarer Avoids Being Shortened in Trump Suit, and Is Certain of Game by Making Discard

By WM. E. McKENNEY

Even a tyro at bridge knows that it pays to discard a loser in one hand on a winning card in the other. Sometimes, however, experts fail to realize that it is quite often just as important to discard a loser on a loser, to conserve trump strength and be prepared for an unfavorable distribution of the trump suit.

This is especially the case where declarer has been warned by his opponents' bids to look for the worst, rather than average or favorable, distribution of trump cards. Such play might be described as simple rubber insurance.

SOLUTION TO PREVIOUS CONTRACT PROBLEM

Today's hand is an apt example, taken from rubber bridge, where rubber insurance proved well worth while.

South's first bid was based on his two-suiter, although his hand was weak for an opening call. North could not afford to make any reply, but East with his tremendous hand and with not more than three probable losers had to take affirmative action.

He doubled, and South, welcoming the opportunity to show his two-suiter, now showed the diamonds, West, trickless, was glad to be relieved of responding and, when North bid two spades in preference, East could do nothing else but bid four hearts.

North could not be blamed for his penalty double, with a partner strong enough to open the bidding and show a second suit, after North had passed.

South opened the king of spades, and, despite the strong spades showing in dummy, continued with the ace. Here East made the play that assured him the safety of his contract.

Instead of ruffing, as many players would do, he discarded his losing diamond, putting a loser on a loser. By making this play, he fulfilled his contract, eventually losing a trump trick.

The diamond discard could lose only in the extremely improbable event that North was void of either clubs or diamonds, a chance so remote as to be unworthy of consideration.

Today's Contract Problem

If North and South arrive at a contract of six spades, should West double? If he does, will this give declarer sufficient information to make his contract?

MEMORIAL TO EVANGELINE

Under the cruel tyranny of King George II of England, the French colonists who had settled in Acadia, that is now Nova Scotia, were exiled and dispersed down the entire length of the Atlantic Coast and westward even to New Orleans. This tragic episode of American history is enshrined in the famous poem by Longfellow whose heroine, Evangeline, has become the symbol of Acadian persecution.

Today there is a picturesque little church in Grand Pre, Nova Scotia, that is consecrated to the memory of this heroine of Acadia, and in the small cemetery before it stands a monument to Evangeline. For a time the church was left almost abandoned, until the government took over church and grounds and converted the area into a national park.

FEATURES AT DANCE RECITAL

Among the very interesting numbers to be presented by Dorothy Cox at the dance recital of the Western School of Dancing on Friday, at the Shrine Auditorium, there will be a play, "In a Street," which was presented by this group of players at the recent Drama Festival.

It will be remembered that this school won the junior championship cup at the festival last year and ranked third in the popularity contest this year.

This play represents the exciting adventures of two "Old Maids" out shopping and the period is the late nineteenth century, of which period the costumes are typical.

One of the very charming scenes is the "Sun Ballet," which describes how the fairies had planned to hold a festival in honor of the "Spirit of the Summer" and how the clouds try to spoil their fun, till the sun calls winds, thunder and lightning to battle, eventually putting the clouds to flight, so that the fairies can hold their festival.

The music used in this number includes the well-known and ever-popular Storm Overture from "William Tell."

Miss Cox, who is responsible for this production, is Associate of the Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing and a member of the Royal Academy of Dancing. This latter was formerly the Operatic Association of Great Britain, but by command of His late Majesty, King George V, this was changed to the Royal Academy of Dancing, by which title the society is henceforth to be called.

NEW HEAD FOR N. VANCOUVER

G. W. Vance Takes Over As Commissioner of Districts From J. V. Fisher

John V. Fisher, Assistant Deputy Minister of Finance of B.C., has resigned his extra duties as commissioner for the city and district of North Vancouver, and George W. Vance, former North Vancouver mayor, has been appointed to succeed him.

Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Municipal Affairs, announced the change this morning.

Mr. Fisher resigned because of increasing duties in the provincial treasury. His work in directing the administration of the two North Vancouver municipalities, which have been under provincial commissionership for some years, was highly praised by the minister.

In choosing Mr. Vance as the new commissioner, the government selected a man with experience in municipal affairs. He served for several years on the council in North Vancouver as well as its mayor.

The post carries with it for the new appointee a salary of $2,100 from North Vancouver City, and $1,500 from North Vancouver district.

TAXPAYERS TO MEET TONIGHT

Indignation Meeting Called For Chamber of Commerce Auditorium

While there was a possibility a tax strike might be advocated at this evening's indignation meeting called by the Victoria Ratepayers' Association, it was not expected to carry, Fred J. Crowhurst, president of the ratepayers' body, said today.

The meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium and will start at 8 o'clock. All taxpayers are requested to attend.

"There is a possibility a tax strike may be advocated, but I hardly think it would be carried out," Mr. Crowhurst said today. "The suggestion has been advanced that citizens stop paying money into a bankrupt concern, the city of Victoria," he added, noting the mayor had frequently contended the city was bankrupt.

A resolution condemning the provincial government's attitude toward municipalities and particularly toward Victoria, would be introduced, Mr. Crowhurst said.

Major H. Cuthbert Holmes, Frank Higgins, K.C., and Frank Partridge will be among the speakers of the evening. Acting Mayor P. R. Brown will attend with members of the City Council.

TO HOLD SCOUT RALLY JUNE 6

Approximately 300 Scouts Will Perform in Annual Classic at Heywood Ave.

Approximately 300 Boy Scouts, who form the twenty-five Scout troops of the city, will take part in the annual rally to be staged on the Heywood Avenue grounds at Beacon Hill Park on Saturday afternoon, June 6.

All troops are requested to be at the Scout headquarters, Johnson Street, at 1.15 o'clock, preparatory to marching to the park at 1.30 o'clock. All Scouts must be in full uniform or dressed in full civilian clothes. Flags and colors will be carried furled at the slope while on the march.

Cub packs will be present, but will not take a very active part in the programme as their rally will be staged June 27.

The orders follow:

On reaching Heywood Avenue the colors will move to the front and packs will fall out on the side. The Scouts will move up followed by packs and march past in that order. The salute will be taken by Lieut.-Governor Eric Hamber, and scouters will give eyes right as they approach the saluting point. After passing the saluting base, colors will halt and a horseshoe will be formed facing west. Cubs will form up in front of troops and the colors will move to the centre. After the address by His Honor the list of competitions will be run off.

The competitions will include knotting, second class first aid, Kims game observation, signalling, Morse or semaphore, first class first aid, map reading, distance and heights and camp site.

Track Handicaps Start Saturday

The Y.M.C.A. summer track and field handicaps will begin Saturday at the High School grounds at 3 o'clock with John Baxter in the capacity of official handicapper.

Similar meets will be held every Saturday for the next few weeks, and are open to anyone interested, with the idea to making the faster runners extend themselves and giving the slower ones a chance to win something. The events will be run on a point basis and the total at the end of the month will determine the winner.

Mr. Baxter ran a successful series of handicap meets last season, and with a good turnout this year the meets show promise of being even more so.

Open events for this coming Saturday include 100 yards dash, 440 yards, high jump, discus and javelin. A 100 yards dash and a high jump will be the only women's events for the afternoon.

MAMMOTH WHALE HAS LARGE MOUTH

The above picture shows "Colossus," the fifty-five-foot whale with part of the crew which captured the mammal. The whale, which is now being exhibited in Vancouver, will be brought to the city on a specially-constructed bridge steel car over 100 feet long, and displayed near the E. and N. Railway depot on June 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Matriculation Class Dinner

Prof. Dilworth Addresses Annual High School Gathering

With Professor Ira Dilworth, a former principal, as guest speaker, the annual Victoria High matriculation banquet was held at the Victoria High School last night.

Professor I. Dilworth, now of the faculty of the University of British Columbia, expressed his pleasure at addressing a Victoria High School group again. In the course of a word or two of advice to students who would soon embark on a career, he urged them to master one particular field of endeavor, although, he added, he was not advocating specialization.

William Stone was Valedictorian, and during his speech said he had no doubt the students felt that the years spent in the Victoria High School were the happiest of their lives.

Joseph Adam spoke on behalf of next year's matriculation class.

Betty Shade delivered an inspiring message to the juniors.

Peggy Mulliner proposed a toast to "Our School."

Principal Harry Smith, in reply, said he and the teaching staff cherished the co-operation and friendship of the students. He wished members of the class every success.

Peter Briscoe proposed a toast to "Our Country."

Francis Guilbride proposed a toast to "The King."

Thomas Anstey spoken on "Class History."

Lorne MacGregor made the "Class Prophecy."

Lewis Alexander, president of the students' council, was toastmaster.

After the speeches a dance was held in the gymnasium. During the intermissions Phyllis Addison, Ian Gibson and Glen Thomas provided entertainment.

SAYS EUROPE YEARNS PEACE

Col. H. F. L. Hilton-Green, Montrealer, Sees Canada For First Time

Lieut.-Col. H. F. L. Hilton-Green, D.S.O., M.C., of the 2nd Gloucestershires of Bradford Court, Taunton, Somerset, England, is a native of Montreal, who is seeing Canada for the first time. He reached Victoria today with Mrs. Hilton-Green and Miss D. Boles, daughter of the late Sir Denis Boles of Watts House, Taunton.

"Never in history has there been yearning for peace such as exists in Europe at the present time, but the nations are gripped with fear and are arming for self-protection," said Lieut.-Col. Hilton-Green when interviewed at the Empress Hotel yesterday.

Just what will emerge from the political situation in Europe, no one can foretell, he said, venturing the view that the tenseness would subside and eventually "blow over." He does not believe that it will come to war.

"The nations realize the awful toll of the last World War and they are not going to risk another and more devastating upheaval," he said.

PREPAREDNESS POLICY

Two things, the colonel said, were holding Great Britain back on the road to complete economic recovery—the political situation and necessary stabilization of exchange. Britain was in the forefront for peace and was doing her utmost to maintain it in a confused Europe, he asserted, but realized the danger of weakness and was now spending millions on her defences. "Preparedness for Peace" is Britain's motto, the colonel said.

Lieut.-Col. Hilton-Green, who during his military career, has seen service in practically every part of the world, was born in Montreal, but left for England with his parents when but a boy.

"I am now really seeing Canada for the first time, although I have distinct recollections of Montreal as a youngster," he said.

He spent several days in Montreal on his way to the Pacific Coast and found that the city had grown out of all proportion to his early impressions of it.

"It is a great city, magnificently planned," he commented.

He has never seen Victoria before and is delighted with the city.

Loan Period Of Books Reduced

Public Library Cuts Time to Fourteen Days

In order to make more books available to readers the loan period at the Victoria Public Library will be changed on June 1 to fourteen days, the period which has been found most satisfactory by the majority of libraries.

This will reduce the waiting time for reserved books and will accelerate the circulation of the whole book stock. New fiction and books in special demand may be borrowed, as at present, for seven days only and may not be renewed. Any other book, not on reserve, may be renewed twice.

Campers may have their usual vacation allowance of three fiction and any reasonable number of non-fiction. These may be taken only once during the summer, and may be kept until October 1. The vacation privilege does not apply to seven-day books or to those on reserve.

The new regulation will be in effect on and after June 1.

Fewer Digestive Upsets

Doctors find Libby's Homogenized Foods far easier for babies to digest than the finest strained foods. Enthusiastic mothers write that since feeding Libby's Homogenized Foods their babies have fewer digestive upsets.

Far More Nourishing

Scientific tests show that Libby's special process of Homogenization makes vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup so fine and smooth, they digest far more completely than the most carefully strained foods. Baby uses far less energy in digesting them... and gets far more nourishment.

Earlier Feeding Possible

Many doctors recommend Libby's Homogenized Vegetables as early as 3 months... weeks earlier than strained foods... to give baby the minerals he needs to help protect against nutritional anemia. (Homogenized vegetables are so fine they may be mixed with baby's milk formula and fed from the bottle!)

DOCTORS Recommend these Easier-to-digest Baby Foods

Mother... here's wonderful news! Libby has discovered a better way to prepare your baby's solid foods. Scientific tests show Libby's special process of Homogenization makes baby's vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup far easier to digest... far more nourishing than the finest strained foods.

See what this Homogenization does...

Whole food cells like this are found in the finest strained foods. They imprison valuable nourishment.

Libby's special Homogenization "explodes" these cells—sets free all nourishment for easy, complete digestion.

Homogenization also reduces coarse, irritating fibres into tiny particles. But all natural bulk necessary for normal elimination is retained. Your doctor will tell you when to start feeding. Buy Libby's Baby Foods at your grocer's. They're priced so low you can feed them to your baby every day.

Also included in the diet of the Dionnes are Libby's Gentle Press Tomato Juice and Libby's Unsweetened Pineapple Juice.

If your grocer cannot supply you with these foods, write us direct, giving your grocer's name. We will see that you are supplied and send you free the very interesting and helpful booklet, "Safer Feeding for Your Baby."

OFFER PRIZES FOR PLAYLET

New Theatre Groups of Canada Arrange Contest For One-act Play

The new theatre groups of Canada, comprising the Vancouver and Winnipeg Progressive Arts Clubs, the Toronto Theatre of Action and the Montreal new theatre group, announce a $150 prize play contest for the best one-act play dealing with the Canadian social scene, past or present; $100 will be given as first prize and $50 as second prize.

The new theatre groups are producing plays which reflect the life and problems of the Canadian people who, bewildered by the great social changes which have shaken their lives to the very foundations since 1929, find no answer to their questions in the conventional drama or film.

Canadian theatre groups are beginning to wake up to the fact that their audiences are no longer interested in the artificial productions which used to be their stock fare. They are waiting for plays which deal with the vital themes of Canadian life, and the contest has been arranged to encourage Canadian playwrights to meet this growing need.

The contest will open June 1 and closes September 30. Winners will be announced in the December issue of New Frontier. Morley Callaghan, Canadian novelist, and Garfield A. King, director of the Vancouver Progressive Arts Club will be the judges, together with one other to be chosen.

Plays are to be thirty minutes to an hour in length, and no full-length plays will be considered. Any form and any scene arrangement is acceptable. Two copies of each manuscript, clearly typed and accompanied by return postage, must be submitted. The author's name and address are not to be on the manuscript, but must be enclosed in a sealed envelope with the name of the play on the outside of the envelope. The playwright may submit any number of scripts to Play Contest, New Frontier, 989 Bay Street, Toronto.

Dominion Body Reports Freedom From Debt in Annual Reports

Canadian Press

Toronto, May 28.—The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada has ended the year with no debt, no reduction in the number of its fields and with no reduction in salaries, reported Mrs. D. Strachan at the twenty-second annual meeting of the society here yesterday.

Alberta, as the one province to exceed its allocation, received the "award of merit," an additional $100 to its allocation for the ensuing year. Alberta's givings were $4,060, British Columbia $5,510, Manitoba $3,427, Ontario $113,110, Quebec $14,550 and Saskatchwan $2,290.

A total of $387,904 passed through the books of the society during the year, and trust funds were reported in excellent condition.

Mrs. H. R. Horne, Regina, raised the question of a change of time from May to September of the council annual meeting, but no decision was reached.

MME. FAHEY IS WELCOMED

Former Victorian Delights Audience With Fine Recital at St. John's

By G. J. D.

Victoria always welcomes Mme. Lugrin Fahey, formerly a foremost active member in the city's vocal circles. She, in her occasional visits to the city—when she sings to us—never lacks due appreciation and enjoyment and her recital yesterday evening at St. John's Church, with its organist and choirmaster Jennings Burnett, at the console of the organ as accompanist, once more drew a large number of appreciative people.

Mme. Fahey is never heard to greater advantage than in the sphere of sacred music—the grand arias of oratorio—and in this she is a veritable priestess who raises men and women to realms of the higher things.

Here, with her rich, plenteous soprano voice, vibrant personality, musical style, splendid vocal technique and gift of impassioned utterance, she commands unusual attention and, as usual, her recital proved one of the major experiences of the musical season.

Each of her numbers throughout were heard with rapt attention, especially Sir Michael Costa's famous aria, "I Will Extol Thee," from "Eli" (Birmingham, 1855), rich in expressive ardor, and in the other oratorio aria, "With Verdure Clad," one of the finest in the "Creation," which Haydn declared to be his favorite of the whole work, that dwells upon and is beautifully illustrative of the third day's work; also the negro spiritual, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?"

Rev. Canon Chadwick, introducing in explanatory remarks the origin and fervor of the spirituals, extended at the same time a cordial greeting on behalf of those present to the recitalist, who followed with its appealing rendition, conveying the deeper moods of human experience with intense religious fervor. "The Lost Chord," "The Ninety and Nine," "Leave It With Him," and her own familiar enchanting "Mother's Lullaby" were all invested with singular beauty and depth of feeling.

Mr. Burnett, besides his skilled accompaniments, added the Adagio from Beethoven's Sonata in C minor ("pathetic") and two of his own compositions, the Organ Prelude, dedicated to the late composer-organist, Douglas Macey, and Allegretto in A minor, both illustrative of the registers and beauties of a noble instrument.

Officers Chosen By Chinese Y.P.S.

The Chinese United Young People's Society held its regular meeting recently, with the president in the chair. The meeting was opened with the singing of the hymn, "Jesus Call Us O'er the Tumult," followed by the Lord's Prayer.

Beginning with the reading of the Scriptures, the devotional group, under the leadership of David Gung, was conducted along the line of questions and answers. The delegates to the Provincial Conference gave their reports, Wilson Lee reporting on recreation, Daniel Chan on Christian Fellowship, John Bong on Discussion Groups, and David Gung on president's problems.

All business was quickly settled, including that regarding the purchasing of new hymnals. It was unanimously decided that the last meeting should be a formal one, ending with a social. Under the supervision of the two advisers, the election of officers for the forthcoming year was carried out. The results were: President, Daniel Chan; vice-president, Wilson Lee; secretary, Alfred Wong; treasurer, David Gung, and pianist, Helen Mah. The new officers were congratulated by the president, who announced the installation of officers was to be held next meeting. The evening was brought to a close with benediction by Rev. Chow Ling.

WEBB—SMITH

In the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends, a marriage was solemnized yesterday evening at 7.30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 1028 Pendergast Street, when Rev. A. de B. The bride wore a charming frock of pale green crepe and lace, and a white hat, and held a bouquet of pink and white sweet peas and snapdragons tied with pink tulle. Her only attendant was Miss Winnie Walsh, in a figured blue crepe de Chine frock, with a corsage spray of pink and white sweet peas. The best man was Mr. Gordon Henderson.

Supper was served after the ceremony from a table set with a lace cloth and centred with the wedding cake, which was surmounted with a vase of tiny rosebuds. Pink tapers in silver candelabra and vases of pink clarkia added to the adornment of the table.

Mrs. Smith wore for the event a gown of pale blue crepe and a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and roses, and Mrs. Fowler, an ensemble of pink, with eggshell accessories, with a shoulder spray of sweet peas.

After a motor trip on the Island, Mr. and Mrs. Webb will live at Canoe Cove, Sidney. Among the numerous gifts was a handsome case of flat silver from Mr. Arthur Terry, by whom the bride had been employed for the last seven years.

IRAQ PRINCESS WEDS BELL-HOP

Canadian Press from Havas

Athens, May 28.—A few hours after eloping with a Greek bell-hop, Princess Azzah of Iraq, sister of King Ghazi, locked herself in her royal suite last night, refusing entrance even to members of the royal family who pleaded for admission. The thirty-year-old princess married the Greek bell-hop, Anastasius Charalambos, earlier in the day.

Princess Rassiha, sister of the bride, attempted to obtain annulment of the marriage but Orthodox Church authorities declined her request.

New Truth Detecting Machine Sees All, Tells All About Beauty

What would you give to see yourself as you will look ten years from today? Or to know what to do so you will look younger five years from now than you do at this minute? That is precisely what is promised to women of Victoria who come for an analysis sitting with the new Derma-Lens which will be in Victoria Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 4, 5, and 6, at MacFarlane Drug Company, brought by a special Helena Rubinstein diagnostician, trained in the use of this amazing device.

"Equipped with a system of very finely-adjusted lens-reflecting mirrors, aided by cleverly arranged lights, this new Derma-Lens not only more clearly delineates every blemish, line or wrinkle already visible, but it makes possible the recognition of approaching changes and defects not yet apparent without the lens," Miss Vivian Carson, the special representative, stated, explaining that Helena Rubinstein had recently perfected this apparatus in Vienna in collaboration with physicians.

A special virtue of this new Derma-Lens is that it is so constructed as to make it possible for the patient as well as the diagnostician to see "into the future of her skin." The patient peering in at one end of the machine, sees exactly what is revealed to the examiner looking into the opposite end. In this way, the patient has a graphic view and a clear understanding of the defects and remedies explained by the examiner.

"In this amazing apparatus you are able to see fine lines so minute that they may not be visible for years to come," Miss Carson asserted. "Being forewarned you can avert the threat through special corrective care. Is a relaxed condition of the muscles already beginning to form, be it ever so imperceptive? Then the Derma-Lens reveals the condition, and you know that you need an effective muscle tightener to restore the resiliency and firmness of the muscles before a double or drooping chin makes its appearance. Likewise, other coming dangers cast their shadows on this ingenious device, enabling treatment before the condition becomes acute." •••

Hollywood, May 28.—Capt. Louis Charles Pellissier, British army officer, came all the way from South Africa to be married only to find there would be no wedding.

His intended bride was Miss Mitzi Miegand, twenty-one, a motion picture player. She declined to comment today but her mother said she "just changed her mind."

Former Victorian Dies in Calgary

Word has been received of the death yesterday morning in Calgary of Mrs. Murray Wilkinson, formerly Miss Kitty Campbell of Victoria, aged thirty-four years, younger daughter of Mrs. E. She leaves her husband, two little sons, William and Patrick, in Calgary, and her sister, Mrs. Arbuckle of St. Louis.

'SALADA' TEA is delicious

CHAPTER XXXII

Afterward Toby thought she managed very well. If she hesitated for an instant, if her voice was not quite as level as it should have been, there was no sign of disconcertion in her face as she said, 'Why, hello, Tim—what a surprise to see you!"

"It's a surprise to see you, too," he told her. "I thought you must be out of town. You seem to have stopped answering telephone calls; at least you don't answer when I call."

He would say that, of course, Toby didn't believe that Tim had telephoned. Probably he didn't expect her to believe it. But, being Tim, he would say it, nevertheless.

"I'm sorry," she told him regretfully—politely regretfully as one is, speaking of an acquaintance rather than to a friend. "If you called and no one answered, I must have been out somewhere. Harriet's away, so there's no one to take messages."

"Where's Harriet?"

"Up in the country. She'd been working too hard and needed a rest."

The traffic light flashed red then, and they crossed the street. "Where're you bound for, Gorgeous?" Tim asked.

She changed her plans abruptly. She didn't want to say that she was going to a movie to escape the heat. So, instead, she said, "Fifty-seventh Street. It's the day for the beauty shop."

"Beauty shop! That's the last place I'd say you'd need to go."

Once the compliment would have thrilled her. Now Toby knew how easily Tim said such things—and how little they meant.

"Oh, there's always the upkeep," she told him lightly.

Tim turned to her appraisingly. "I don't think you need to worry about the original job or the upkeep, either. As it happens, I'm headed in the same direction myself. Mind if I walk along with you?"

"Of course not."

They went on in silence for several moments. Suddenly Tim said. "Oh, by the way, Gorgeous, I've noticed you've taken to decorating the news stands. Decorating them very nicely, too. That picture of you on the cover of —— (he named a widely circulated magazine) last week was a knockout."

"Thanks. That was one of Duryea's pictures. I liked it myself."

"It was a beauty!" Tim said enthusiastically. "And you can take that more than one way."

Oh, yes, flattery came easily to him. Why hadn't she understood long before that words spoken so easily must be as lightly meant?

He talked on—of the weather, the wilted appearance of the city, the boat races the Saturday before, a new car that passed them—until Toby halted before a doorway. "This is the place," she said. "This is where I leave you. It's nice to have seen you, Tim—"

She had one hand on the door, would have entered, but he stopped her. "Wait a minute," he said. "How about hunting up a cool roof this evening, doing a bit of dancing, maybe? Don't you think it's time we did something like that? I do."

She shook her head, smiling. "Sorry, Tim, but I couldn't. I'm going to be busy tonight."

"Then how about tomorrow?"

"I'm afraid not—"

'Have a heart, Gorgeous!" he urged. "I've been trying to see you for weeks; honestly I have. Don't turn me down, now that I've found you. Come on—let's make a date for tomorrow."

"Can't you break it?"

"Not very well."

"You mean you don't want to. Is that the idea?"

Why was she denying it, since it was true? She didn't have a date for tonight or the next night either. She was saying she had because she had made up her mind she would not let Tim Jamieson coax her into agreeing to see him again.

"Well, maybe you'll change your mind," Tim suggested. "Girls have been known to do that. Anyhow, I'm going to give you a call tomorrow."

"All right. You can do that. Goodbye, Tim."

" 'Bye, Gorgeous. Remember you'll be hearing from me."

Toby went into the building and stepped into an elevator. Since she was here, she decided, she might as well go up and let Charles do her hair. On such a hot afternoon there would be no difficulty about an appointment. And she really hadn't wanted to see that movie, anyhow.

Sitting with the waves carefully pressed into her hair, waiting for them to dry, Toby made up her mind about one thing. She would not stay home, waiting for Tim Jamieson to telephone. She had done that once; she would never do it again. Tim's part in her life had come to a finish and it was going to stay that way. Probably he wouldn't call. Whether he did or not, she would not be home.

For two days she invented excuses to keep her away from the apartment. She went on shopping trips. She had a call from the Models' League and spent several hours—the hottest part of a terrifically hot day—bundled up in one fur coat after another, posing before a camera. The coats would not appear in shops until August, but they had to be photographed in June.

She lingered in the league office, lunched with a girl she did not particularly like. Bill Brandt took her to a play she had said she wanted to see, but the night was so warm neither of them enjoyed the performance.

Finally, Toby's sense of humor came to her rescue. It was ridiculous to stay away from home because of Tim, and suddenly she saw that. Probably he hadn't called, or, if he had, and had received no answer, there was little likelihood that he would call again.

Besides, she could always find an excuse for not seeing him.

With this decision made, Toby slipped back into the old routine. She was at home one morning, inspecting a pair of soiled white sandals and trying to decide whether or not they were worth dyeing, when the bell from the entrance downstairs rang sharply.

It must be the postman with a letter from Harriet. One letter had arrived several days ago—a letter that described "Aunt Abigail" Dinwiddie, Aunt Abagail's cooking, her comfortable, old-fashioned home and the little town of Plainsville, all with equal enthusiasm.

Toby, anxious for more news, hurried down the stairs. She opened the door of the tiny vestibule—and faced Tim Jamieson.

"Hello, Gorgeous," he said, grinning. "I've given up trying to reach you by phone. Decided to come myself. Run upstairs and get your bonnet. You and I are going on a picnic."

* * *

If he had said anything else except a picnic, Toby might not have weakened. But a picnic—blue sky overhead, green fields, trees reaching out generous, shady branches, perhaps a stream and the sound of rushing water! How had he known that a picnic would be irresistible?

"I'd love it," Toby said, raising shining eyes.

"The car's waiting and the lunch is packed. Hurry up and get that bonnet on—"

Already Toby was on her way upstairs. She called over her shoulder, "I'll hurry!"

She put on a dress of yellow linen and tied back her hair with a yellow scarf. She slipped on low, flat-heeled shoes, caught up a sweater, and was back.

The roadster at the curb was new. "Like it?" Tim asked, grinning.

"It's grand!"

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Training the child to control his bowels is easier than training him to control his bladder. In teaching the baby bowel control, these seven suggestions may be followed:

1. Begin during the first month to train your baby to use the chamber.

2. Hold him comfortably in your lap on the chamber. Do this at regular times; when he wakes up, when he is ready for his nap, and before each feeding.

3. Change diapers promptly when wet. This helps in his training. The baby soon learns to feel uncomfortable in a wet diaper.

4. As soon as the baby sits up easily of his own accord, have him use a chair in the bathroom, instead of the chamber in your lap.

5. Leave him on the chair not longer than five minutes. Do not let him have toys to play with.

6. When the baby can walk successfully, take off the diapers and put into jersey panties.

7. Do not use rubber panties—they injure the skin. When traveling, use the large, loose, rubberized diaper. Have an extra one to place in your lap, or on the car or train seat.

Dr. M. Fishbein

It is important to teach the child not to delay after he gets on the toilet. If he is permitted to sit at the toilet playing with a toy or looking at a book, or otherwise amusing himself, without giving his main attention to the matter concerned, he will form a habit which may eventually result in constipation.

The baby must learn to attempt to have an action of the bowel just as soon as he feels contact with the toilet seat.

Many mothers, because of excess modesty, teach the child all sorts of tricks to indicate that he wishes to go to the toilet. Queer words are used for the purpose, and also strange gestures.

It is just as well to realize that this is a normal activity of the bowel, and that the child should learn from the beginning the suitable words in relation to this activity.

CLAIM FAILS AGAINST BANK

Canadian Press

Saskatoon, May 28.—Action to recover $1,768, made up of salary deductions for the officers' pension fund and accrued interest, brought against the Royal Bank of Canada by H. C. McDonald, a discharged manager, failed in the King's Bench Court here yesterday. The result had been awaited with interest by employees of all banks who have been retired during depression years.

Dismissal of the suit was based simply on rules governing the pension fund contributions, which McDonald accepted, the alternative being severance of his connections with the bank. He joined the bank at the age of seventeen in 1906 at Halifax, began to contribute to the fund in 1909 and was dismissed in 1935.

Mr. Justice H. V. Bigelow remarked in his verdict that McDonald could have left the bank if he did not approve of the pension rules.

Canadian Press

Quebec, May 28.—For the eleventh consecutive year the Women's Suffrage Bill was defeated in the Quebec Legislative Assembly yesterday by a vote of forty-three to twenty-four.

The bill, sponsored by Fred A. Monk, Action Liberale Nationale, Jacques Cartier, came before the House for second reading, and after a debate in which several members of the Opposition voiced reasons for opposing the bill, the vote was called.

All Liberal members in the House voted against the motion proposing second reading, while twenty-four members of the Opposition voted in favor. Other Opposition members did not vote.

GIRL ATHLETE BECOMES MALE

Two Operations Transform Mary Weston Into Mark Weston

Canadian Press from Havas

London, May 28.—Miss Mary Edith Louise Weston, British girl athlete, who has won several international trophies in field sports, ceased to exist today.

At the same time the British sports world gained a new male athlete in the person of Mark Weston.

Miss Weston entered a hospital here dressed in feminine attire and after two operations emerged as Mark Weston, wearing men's clothes and carrying the following doctor's certificate:

"This is to certify that Mark Weston, who has always been brought up as a female, is male and should continue life as such."

EGGS THROWN AT MOVIE ACTOR

Associated Press

Hollywood, Cal., May 28.—Accompanied by uniformed members of his light horse troop, Victor McLaglen—like most Hollywood stars—pressed his hand prints in the cement of a theatre foyer here, only to be greeted by a shower of eggs.

Members of the light horse troop dashed away and returned promptly with a man who told them he was R. T. W. Hughes. He said he once had sued the actor for a broken nose he suffered in the making of a film.

"I've been trying to get justice ever since," he added.

LOSSES IN WILD HERDS

Edmonton, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Carcasses of buffalo and elk dot Elk Island Park, thirty miles east of Edmonton. The unusually severe winter took heavy toll of the herds. Approximately fifty of the herd of buffalo and a large number of elk died during the winter and early spring. It was the hardest winter on his charges during his twenty-six years at the federal government park, it was stated by A. W Cofford, superintendent.

WARM ON PRAIRIES

Winnipeg, May 28.—Battleford, Sask., yesterday endured a high temperature of 102 degrees, the top in the Dominion. Edmonton's 94 degrees was the hottest recorded so early in the season in twenty years, while Saskatoon reported 98 degrees, Prince Albert, Sask., and Medicine Hat, Alta., 96, Regina 94 and Winnipeg 92.

TWO-YEAR SENTENCE

New Orleans, May 28 (Associated Press).—Fred Hunter, arrested here May 1 with Alvin Karpis, accused St. Paul kidnapper, yesterday pleaded guilty before Judge Wayne G. Borah to an indictment charging him with conspiracy to harbor Karpis. He was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

A CHILD ENJOYS THE ATTENTION HIS ERRATIC BEHAVIOR BRINGS HIM

Children have three daily opportunities to draw attention to themselves, and these have to do with eating, sleeping and elimination. There are other opportunities for bringing upon themselves the worried concern of their parents, but these three happen every day.

PARENTS CONCERN EXCITING

Naturally, when a child for some trivial reason refuses his carrots, or fails to take his nap, or has a toilet mishap, he is going to be interested not only in what his parents do—but in the discovery that he can repeat the behavior, with startling results, any time he takes the notion.

The knowledge of the power he wields over parents is exciting to the child. Why should we deny the child the same privileges we enjoy ourselves? How many of us ever miss an opportunity to state that we cannot eat chocolate, or that egg plant is one of our pet detestations?

WHIMS ARE NATURAL

Yet the moment a child expresses even the mildest distaste for the food put before him, we take it as a personal affront and act upon it accordingly.

When the child fails to nap, we do not busy ourselves discovering why he might not be sleepy at this particular time—though he may have been daily up to that moment, we put our attention upon the child and blame him and show him our concern.

DON'T EMPHASIZE MISBEHAVIOR

Toilet misbehavior should be expected of young children. But once the child has been trained—or so we think—we make as much of an accidental mishap as if it were a planned and maliciously perpetrated crime. We have a leaflet on "Training for Cleanly Toilet Habits" for a self-addressed three-cent stamped envelope sent to the Your Baby and Mine department of this newspaper.

Through accidents in all of these everyday situations, the child has an opportunity to learn how mighty he can be, if only he puts his mind to it. And the incidents which would have disappeared, had no direct notice been given to them, develop into real problems, the result of the unwise parental attention given to them.

BEARS PARTNERS IN THEFT RAIDS

Canadian Press

Vancouver, May 28.—A partnership between two brown bears, one large and one small, for staging raids on cabins on Hollyburn Ridge, is reported by hikers in that West Vancouver area.

The small bear is said to enter the cabin windows, raid the larders and throw canned goods out the window. He then joins his partner and they feast at the expense of the camp owners.

NOTES ON THE QUINTUPLETS' STEADY PROGRESS

Eighteen months ago the Dionne Quintuplets were given their first Carnation Milk. And by now the five have consumed over twenty-five hundred large tins—five hundred apiece! Just passing their second birthday, these sturdy toddlers are continuing on the milk that has nourished them so well. Pure, wholesome, super-digestible—there's no better milk for children to grow up on. . . . The Quintuplets have more than doubled their weight since their first Carnation feedings—have developed into hearty, adorable, contented babies. Their milk, by the way, is exactly the same as that which your grocer sells. It is irradiated—adding bone-building "sunshine" vitamin D. . . . An ideal milk for babies and children—and very fine for cooking and creaming. . . . Carnation Company Ltd., Vancouver, B.C.

NEW EMPIRE DISCUSSIONS

Canadian Press

London, May 28.—The coincidence that the next few weeks will see an unusual concourse of Dominion ministers in London was the basis of an editorial yesterday in The London Times emphasizing the need, especially at the present juncture of Britain and the Dominions keeping in line.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King is expected in London next month, Minister of Commerce Earle Page and Attorney-General R. G. Menzies of Australia are at present in London, while Minister of Defence Oswald Pirow of South Africa is en route from Capetown. W. G. Nash, New Zealand Minister of Finance and Customs, is to come to London soon.

TRADE DEFENCE

The objects of all the visits, except that of Mr. Pirow, are mainly commercial. Mr. Pirow is coming at the invitation of the British government to discuss South African defence, with which will probably be included the question of fortifying Capetown harbor as a means of safeguarding the alternative route to India and the east.

The Times thought the opportunity should be taken for an information discussion in which all would participate.

PLANS NOT KNOWN YET

Ottawa, May 28. — Prime Minister King will not be in London next month, it was stated at his office when attention was drawn to a London dispatch saying the next few weeks would see a concourse of Dominion ministers in London and mentioning Mr. King was expected there next month.

While it is considered likely Mr. King will go to London some time after Parliament concludes here, it is not expected the session will end until late in June. The Canadian Prime Minister's plans are said to be indefinite as yet.

Trade Problem Must Be Solved

Cannot Go on Draining Wealth of West, Says Byron Johnson, M.P.P.

"The greatest problem of western Canada today is to find a solution, through the Dominion administration, of our unsatisfactory trading position and the wide spread in our buying and selling price levels," declared Byron "Boss" Johnson, M.P.P., in a speech before the Liberal nominating convention yesterday evening.

"It can be done," he said. "I am not ready to say definitely how, but it might be by extra subsidies or in additional public works to make up for what we lose.

"The vital fact is that we cannot go on draining the wealth out of our province and not replacing it, and still expect to have prosperity. Inflation, or borrowing our way out, cannot be a permanent solution. It must be a sound solution of our trading difficulties."

People in the west were beginning to wake up to this position more clearly and even in the east a glimmer of it was seeping through, Mr. Johnson said. Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, the Federal Minister of Labor, had shown how the outlying sections of Canada were drained by the central provinces and the Finance Minister, Hon. Charles Dunning, at the spring conferences had said the central provinces, although contributing large amounts to the federal treasury, must be regarded as the tax collecting agencies for the other provinces.

Mr. Johnson touched on this subject in course of a brief address to the convention. In reference to the approaching by-election, he said:

"The Victoria Conservative Association owes Dr. Tolmie a debt and is trying to pay it by securing his election to Ottawa. But it is up to the people of Victoria to decide whether they wish to pay the Conservative Association's debt. If they so decide it seems to me Victoria will suffer."

Seventh Battalion Will Gather Here

Members of Famous Fighting Unit Will Hold Reunion on June 6

Members of the 7th Battalion C.E.F., one of Victoria's famous fighting units during the Great War and the corps that originated organized bombing raids in France, will gather at Spencer's dining-room on Saturday evening in observance of the twenty-first anniversary of the unit going into action on the battlefront.

In the first organized bombing-raid, three well-known Victorians were among the party going over, Capt. W. C. Merston, J. R. McIlree and D. G. Holmes.

The dinner is the first of what the members hope will be an annual affair. Up-island and mainland members may secure tickets from L. Glazan, telephone E 1193; C. F. Dawson, G 2313, or D. G. Holmes, G 2155.

Artillerymen Celebrating

Members of 15th Brigade, C.F.A., Will Meet Saturday Night in Douglas Hotel

Members of the 15th Brigade C.F.A. Association will hold a banquet in the Douglas Hotel on Saturday evening next, commencing at 7 o'clock.

About 125 former artillerymen are expected to attend the gathering, which will be under the chairmanship of Percy Gilson, president. Ralph Cruickshanks is secretary. Members of the unit will be here from Vancouver, Nanaimo, Duncan, Sidney, Salt Spring Island and other points.

The unit left here on May 26, 1916, under the late Lieut.-Col. A. T. Ogilvie. It spent several months under canvas at Petawawa, Ont., and then proceeded to England, where the batteries were changed from four to six guns. This necessitated a reduction in the number of brigades and the 15th Brigade became the 14th Brigade.

A good programme is being arranged and the old artillerymen are looking forward to the best reunion they have had since their return from overseas.

A MACHINE THAT DETECTS DISEASES

A highly-sensitive machine, the micro-dynameter diagnostic galvanometer, which can detect even the slightest infection or disease in a living body, was recently exhibited at the Sixth International Congress of Physical Medicine held in London, England, recently. The machine works on the principle that disease is, apparently, a disturbance of electrical (electro-chemical) equilibrium. Terminals are attached to the patient and a band of light moves along a calibrated scale according to the strength of electrical energy conducted from the body. The diagnostic currents registered by the micro-dynameter are generated by the patient. It is believed this machine will be of great value to doctors in making a diagnosis. The picture above shows the machine being demonstrated to delegates at the congress.

Tariff Charges All Approved

Commons Completes Its Work on That Part of Budget; Tourists' Liquor Rule Debated

Canadian Press

Ottawa, May 28.—Another milestone of the parliamentary session was passed yesterday when the last of the tariff changes in the budget was approved. Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Finance, got his budget through the House with unusually little debate this session. The formal budget debate was short and discussion of the tariff changes was limited.

Complications developed over the clause providing for free entry of tourists' purchases up to $100 in value. The clause restricts the exemption on liquor to a quart and Opposition members claim that under other laws it was illegal to bring any liquor into Canada. They said the clause would be misleading to a layman and suggested it should conform to other legislation and prohibit the entry of any liquor.

Mr. Dunning and Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue, were unwilling to make a change, although they admitted the point had given them a great deal of trouble. They promised to consider the point raised further and announced that customs officers in any case would take steps to warn tourists against bringing liquor back from their trips abroad.

Today the House turned to consideration of changes in the income tax law and estimates.

Canadians returning to British Columbia from the United States will be permitted to bring back a reputed quart of liquor, it was stated by liquor control officials. This privilege, however, is not enjoyed by citizens of the United States touring in this province, nor may a Canadian entering the United States take a bottle of liquor with him.

Bennett Speaks On Dictatorship

Says It Would Never Be Tolerated in Canada; Country's Defence Need

Canadian Press

London, Ont., May 28.—Dictatorship will never be tolerated in Canada, Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett told members of the Ontario Medical Association in a speech yesterday evening.

"You cannot, in a country such as Canada, with so much at stake for human liberty, make your governmental structure a plaything of experimentation," the former Prime Minister said, "for, behind the nostrum that heals every social disease, there usually is hidden the design for group or individual power."

The most disquieting feature of dictatorship today was that it arose on an assumption of popular approval and then first use it made of its power was to dismember the framework of popular government.

Mr. Bennett reminded his listeners man was somewhat of an unmanageable creature.

"He may submit for the moment to management based on a supposedly better conception of society than he has so far experienced," the Conservative leader said. "But the longer his individuality is suppressed, the more violent will be his awakening, and when he awakes he will wreak his vengeance on those who deprived him of his liberty."

QUESTIONS OF DEFENCE

Mr. Bennett coupled these remarks with a call to Canadians to face the growing power of dictatorships, militarism and reaction throughout the world, to take account of the responsibilities of national aspirations and their defence, and a warning against the cost of protection obtained from a stronger nation.

Referring to the "visionary means of security provided by the League of Nations," Mr. Bennett said it was for the British Commonwealth to take up the cause of peace and security where the League "laid it down."

Painting a dark picture of world conditions with individual liberty subordinated to the power of the state, international covenants disregarded and democracy in the discard, Mr. Bennett declared Canada could, if she wished, rely on others, who are stronger, for defence. "But the day will come," he warned, "when we shall find our security has been bought for a price to which we did not agree and on terms not of our making."

SECURITY LACKING

Of the League of Nations Mr. Bennett said "There is not much security in covenants." Security could not be obtained by writing on "a piece of paper." To trust in such a method would be to "suffer a painful disillusionment of which Europe today provides so grim an example."

GARDEN TOUR COMING HERE

Party From Southern California Will Spend Week in Victoria

A party of gardeners from the Pasadena district in Southern California, including Mrs. Leonard B. Slossom, regional vice-president of the National Council of State Garden Clubs Incorporated, which includes 600 horticultural organizations in California alone with a membership of over 6,000, will visit Victoria during the first week in June, according to an announcement made today.

A lengthy programme of visits to gardens and parks, teas and talks, has been arranged by Gwen Cash, press representative of the Empress Hotel, who organized the tour.

It is understood that a number of garden editors will make the trip with the party. Clyde Hurley, garden editor of The Pasadena Star News, is definitely coming, while Norvell Gillespie, garden editor of The Sunset Magazine, hopes to make the trip.

The visitors will arrive here on Monday next, and will have tea at "Gonzales," garden of Mrs. Will Pemberton, 595 Foul Bay Road.

ROCKLAND GARDENS

On Tuesday, the Californians may visit "Duvals," home of Senator G. H. Barnard; "Cavignol," home of W. Hobart Molson; "Rosedene," home of Mrs. W. C. Nichol, and the gardens of Alan B. Morkill and Arthur H. Bennett. They will have tea at the home of Mrs. Biggerstaff Wilson, 1770 Rockland Avenue.

In the evening lectures will be given at the Empress Hotel. Dr. William Newton, head of the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology at Saanichton, will speak on his trip to England, and A. H. Bennet will talk on the Lohbrunners' expedition in search of the flora of the Arctic.

A trip to the Dominion Experimental Station, Saanichton, and tea there has been arranged for Wednesday, and while en route the visitors will visit "Strangewood," garden of Col. S. L. McMullen, Gordon Head.

In the evening Fred Saunders, head gardener at the Empress Hotel, will give a talk on chrysanthemums.

Thursday the Californians are invited by the Rock Garden Society of Victoria to tea at their club rooms in the Beach Hotel. That afternoon they will visit the gardens of Mrs. C. J. Coultas, 237 King George; Mrs. Huge Beaven, 1176 Beach Drive, and Mrs. Gordon F. Hepburn, 1420 Beach Drive.

As a variation to gardening Dr. Ian McTaggart will speak on the Totem Pole Indians of B.C. in the evening.

BUTCHART'S GARDENS

On Friday afternoon the visitors will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Butchart, and view their famous gardens.

In the evening John A. Grant, rock garden specialist, will speak on the making of rock gardens.

There will be a floral tea at the Empress Hotel on Saturday.

Other gardens that will be opened during the week, mornings only, will be Government House, 1401 Rockland Avenue; 305 Denison Road, Gonzales Hill, owned by Comte de Suzannet; "Queenswood," Arbutus Road, owned by Col. A. A. Sharland, and the garden of J Waddell, on Seaview Road, Ten Mile Point.

It is hoped that this tour of gardens to Victoria will become an annual event. Due to the fact that arrangements were made rather late this year, the first week in June was the earliest possible date, but next year the tour will probably be organized in May, when the bulbs and early spring flowers are at their best.

TACKS NO TERROR TO THIS AUTO

Jerusalem is showing real ingenuity in meeting its newest traffic hazard. In the general strike which the Palestine Arabs are staging in their demand that Jewish immigration be halted, tacks have been scattered in all the principal streets of the ancient city, to halt traffic. Here is shown an auto equipped to overcome this obstacle. Brooms have been placed in front of the wheels to sweep up the tacks as the car moves along and the laughing crowds beside the machine seems to be confident that the innovation will work.

STOWAWAY ON NEW VESSEL

Canadian Woman Stayed Aboard Ss. Queen Mary and Took Tea With Passengers

Canadian Press From Havas

Cherbourg, May 28. — The giant liner Queen Mary left behind a romantic but somewhat crestfallen young Canadian lady who saw her dreams of a "supremely thrilling," trans-Atlantic voyage as a stowaway on the liner's maiden trip to New York dissolve at Cherbourg after a few hours of travel.

She is Rohanna T. Siegel, young film company worker, who left a New York job recently to seek a new position in England.

The stowaway, who said her parents have their residence in Canada, embarked at Southampton on a visitor's ticket, but once aboard felt an irresistible call to go down to the sea in ships as a stowaway.

It was soon found out the vessel was carrying one unlisted person among its passengers. Courteously but firmly Miss Siegel was informed she would have to alight when the ship arrived at Cherbourg at 9 p.m.

"I went aboard for a thrill," she said. "I knew it would be a supreme experience and it has been. I have an apartment in New York, but my parents reside in Canada.

"I came to England on the Aquitania April 22. I had worked with a film company in New York for four years and came to England to find work with a British film concern. I did not really mean to stay aboard—at first.

"But when I had been on the ship a short while the temptation became overwhelming," she concluded smilingly.

Toronto, May 28.—Rohama Siegel, who "stowed away" on Britain's giant liner Queen Mary, is a 1927 arts graduate of the University of Toronto and daughter of a member of Toronto's Board of Education.

After boarding the liner at Southampton on a visitor's ticket, Miss Siegel found the urge to adventure irresistible, but was discovered and told to leave the ship at Cherbourg.

While an undergraduate of the university here she won an oratorical contest, later going to New York in film work. Her mother is Mrs. Ida Siegel, a school trustee.

McDowell Chosen Liberal Candidate For By-election

OTHERS PROPOSED

Carew Martin nominated Mr. McGiverin as "a man with politics in his blood," whose father was for two years a cabinet minister under Premier King.

Mr. Whitney-Griffiths was sponsored by Harry Hammond, who made a brief reference to his nominee's continuous efforts to serve the city.

N. W. Whittaker, M.P.P., introduced the name of Frank Hall, son of Henry Hall, K.C., and described in glowing terms his legal record, scholastic attainments and speaking achievements. "Whatever Mr. Hall has done he has done well," said Mr. Whittaker. W. P. Lawson seconded

The candidates were each given ten minutes to speak.

Mr. Hall, opening, paid tribute to the late B. C. Nicholas as a great Canadian and a great Liberal.

YOUNG MEN'S PROBLEMS

Dealing with political subjects, he said Canada's problems were those of young men. The country's debt burden must be borne by future generations, and he felt that monetary and credit reform was essential. National defence was also of vital importance to youth who would not want to see British Columbia used as "another Belgium." And of greatest importance was unemployment. He advocated a programme of national public works undertakings to provide jobs not as a relief measure, but as a sound investment in the future of Canada that would more than pay for themselves eventually. As a Victoria representative at Ottawa one of the first things he would take up would be the establishment of an air base. Victoria, he said, could become a great terminal for Pacific air travel.

When Mr. Hall was finishing, Premier Pattullo entered the hall and was greeted with cheers and prolonged hand-clapping.

NOT FAR BEHIND

Mr. McDowell, the second speaker, said that in the general election, out of 21,000 votes cast here the Liberal candidate was only 1,000 votes behind the man elected, who was then standing as a government candidate. This time the shoc was on the other foot and the Liberal represented the administration."

"Victoria can elect a Liberal to Ottawa," he said. "It simply means the transference of only a few hundred votes that went to the other candidates last time."

As the party candidate he would take two pledges, one to endorse Mackenzie King's leadership, the other to fight for Victoria's needs, which he had often outlined.

He recalled that he had assured his support to the late Mr. Nicholas as a prospective candidate and said he felt sincerely that Mr. Nicholas could have done more for Victoria at Ottawa than any other man.

WOULD LIKE TO AVENGE DEFEAT

Mr. McGiverin said he was a Liberal not only by birth and tradition but by firm conviction. He went back into history to recall how Dr. Tolmie in 1917 had defeated A. E. Humphries for the Victoria seat and said he now would like to go into the fight to avenge that loss.

Mr. McGiverin suggested a petition to the Minister of National Defence as a means of securing an air base in Victoria. The B.C. coast, he said, was defenceless from the air, from the water and from any other position, and had the right to better protection. Moreover, developments of this kind would mean larger payrolls in Victoria.

VICTORIA ALWAYS WAITING

Mr. Whitney Griffiths, in the wind-up speech before balloting, told how he had come to B.C. twenty-eight years ago because of a desire which had persisted since his youth, and he had "finished the last part of the journey on foot" because his funds were exhausted.

Victoria, he said, had been waiting for years for works and government undertakings and if it wanted to do better in this direction should send another type of man to Ottawa.

He supported the King government's unemployment policy because it tended toward making men and women independent of government and not more dependent upon it.

"Send men to Ottawa who believe in this and who will fight for you from start to finish," he concluded.

Alderman T. W. C. Hawkins was chairman of the convention and Cleve White acted as returning officer for the balloting.

During intermissions vocal solos were given by H. J. Applegate and Miss Catherine Flavelle with Miss S. Friend as accompanist.

Mrs. G. W. Chapman gave piano selections.

Pattullo Defends Government Record

PEACE RIVER ROAD

In the course of his remarks, he announced that the Dominion and provincial governments were jointly undertaking construction of a road from the Peace River block to link up with the provincial highway from Fort St. James to Finlay Forks. Within a comparatively short time there would be access to the Peace River from British Columbia as a result.

Applause followed announcement by the Premier of the completion of negotiations on the public works programme and also of a statement that the money spent on road surfacing last year was never more advantageously used.

The Premier itemized the Liberal platform of 1933, showing what had been done in each case.

COUNCIL'S VALUE

The Economic Council, promised by party, had done immensely valuable research work, especially in trade matters and had produced strong arguments to offset eastern opinion which would "like to place B.C. in the position of receiving dictation from the east in minute detail."

"It has been said that I got the idea for the Economic Council from President Roosevelt's brain trust, but as a matter of fact I had announced it before Roosevelt opened his campaign," he said. "Those on the council who have resigned have served the purpose for which they were appointed but the Economic Council will go on."

FINANCES BETTER

He discussed the improvement in the financial position of the province, mentioning that while reducing taxation on lower incomes, the government had stabilized finances so that it was able to take care of a $3,500,000 maturity on May 15 out of current surpluses.

The government had started its programme of municipal assistance by relieving them of a large portion of unemployment relief costs and next session remedial measures of "substantial character" would be carried out, regardless of what happened at Ottawa in the meantime.

Regarding the suggested public utilities commission, the Premier said it was found that the money needed to secure the necessary data on the operating companies would have run to such a large sum that the expense was not warranted now.

He discussed the "freedom of action for members" plank of the platform, adding with a smile: "In the light of all that has occurred in our Legislature I wonder if anyone will suggest that there has not been the utmost freedom of action by our members."

BETTER TERMS SUCCESS

In its "better terms for B.C" plank, the administration had achieved two marked successes, first by securing an interim subsidy payment of $750,000 a year from Ottawa, and secondly by the promise of a royal commission to hear the full claims and adjudicate upon them.

"To be frank with you," the Premier said, "I had not looked at the Liberal platform since I was elected until some of our critics brought it up last session. It was so deeply ingrained in us all after our years of fight for it, that to look at it was unnecessary. But when I did so and compared the results, I was absolutely astounded that we had been able to carry out so much in so short a time."

Canada Northern Power Corporation Limited (Canadian Press). — Directors of Sheep Creek Limited preferred 1¾ per cent. payable July 15, to stock of record June 30.

GETTING RUNS across the plate is the main idea in baseball, and the ever-alert St. Louis Cardinals are seeing to it that the pressure is on in that all-important department of play.

If a Redbird goes to bat with less than two out and a runner on third base and fails to bat in a run he is automatically fined $5.

If first and third are occupied with one out and the batter hits into a double play the man who hits the ball has to pay $10.

If runners are on first and third with less than two out and the batter hits into a double play on which the man on third scores, the batter escapes being fined.

"Many players may not consider these rules good for a team, but I do," says Frankie Frisch. "The runner is on third base, and he's there to be driven home. All my players are in favor of the rules."

The Cardinals have done everything else in order to win games. That is why they have captured five National League pennants and three world championships in ten years. Now they are fining themselves for failure to deliver in the clinches. This is helping to keep them in front of the senior loop pack at this time.

Assessments go into a penalty pool, which is to be divided equally among the athletes at the conclusion of the campaign.

The Detroit club operates along the same general lines. Make them throw you out. Get those runs over the plate. This in a large measure accounts for the Battling Bengals, as Mickey Cochrane calls them, dominating the American League scene for the last two campaigns.

An opposing infielder cannot afford to juggle the ball or hesitate when deployed against the Cardinals or Tigers. An enemy fly-chaser cannot be thinking of anything else when in the field, for Cards and Tigers require no second invitation to take an extra base.

This also accounts for their being such tremendous attractions. It makes them the most pleasing clubs in the game to watch.

Petey Sarron, who dethroned Freddie Miller as featherweight champion in Washington, not only is the first Birmingham boxer to ascend a world throne, but the first Syrian to achieve the honor.

Sarron started as an amateur in the Boys' Club of Birmingham more than a dozen years ago. He is small for a feather, standing only 5 feet 3. He has dark eyes and straight black hair, like most members of his race.

The Syrian reaches his pugilistic peak at an age when nearly all fighters are on the skids. He has had his full share of tough breaks. He must have been tempted to give up at times, something he could well afford to do, since he has saved his money.

Sarron came very near achieving a world title a year or two after he started. He went to the final of the Olympic trials in 1924, losing to Fidel LaBarba in a match so close that the judges called for an extra round. The Syrian went ahead with the Olympic team, but did not get to compete. The title went to LaBarba.

The ex-newsboy's fists are broken, bent and twisted. He is a hard hitter with an awkward style — one who hurls leather from all angles.

Sarron made the grade the hard way—from fly to feather. He required four meetings to catch up with Miller.

Porky Andrews and Virginia Hall Win Main Titles Again

Bill Dale Runner-up in Boys' Section; Fred Smith Intermediate Victor

MacGregor Takes Senior Sprints

Withstanding strong challenges from other promising track and field performers, senior champions of Victoria High School last year still wore their mythical laurel wreaths today. George "Porky" Andrews and Virginia Hall, defending titleholders, emerged yesterday with their crowns intact after the annual meet at Fernwood Road grounds.

A good crowd of enthusiastic spectators gathered to watch the event and cheer their favorites on.

Andrews cinched his championship when he won the broad jump, the last event on the programme. Andrews obtained twenty-five points, placing ahead of Bill Dale who secured nineteen. Henry "Hank" Rowe, intermediate champion last year, placed third in the senior division with fifteen points.

Virginia Hall had no difficulty in keeping her girls' senior honors. She placed first in all the events in which she took part and obtained a total of fifteen points. Trailing eight points behind Virginia came Joyce Eden and in third place was Mar-Margaret Tonman with six points.

SMITH INTERMEDIATE WINNER

Fred Smith led the boys' intermediate honors by a safe margin. He finished with thirty points, fourteen more than Bill Brown, who placed second. John Stewart finished third in the intermediate class with five. Smith captured the junor boys' title last year. He outshone his opponents in all events and succeeded in smashing the school record in the intermediate 100-yard dash and raised the high jump record by half an inch. Smith cleared 5 feet 5 inches, breaking the old record of 5 feet 4½ inches which was set by B. Humber and H. Rowe. Smith ran the 100-yard dash in 10 3-5 seconds, lowering the old record of 11 seconds.

Eva Mason led the girls' intermediate class with fifteen points to her credit. Phyllis Hobbs came second with eleven and Anna Peden third with seven. Eva turned in a fine performance during the day, placing first in every event in which she took part. She finished an easy first in the girls' intermediate seventy-five-yard dash, which provided one of the thrills of the meet.

JUNIOR CHAMPION

Lanky Dan Alton won junior boys' honors with thirteen points. Trailing Alton by a single point was Ray Warburton. Robert Price was third with eight points.

In the race for the girls' junior honors young Darlaine Woodburn was first. Ethel Pitchett came second with four points less than Darlaine. Peggy Linn was third with five points. In the junior girls' sixty yards sprint Ethel Pitchett tied H. Beck's record of 7 4-5 seconds.

In the boys' hop, step and jump Bill Dale broke Lynn Patrick's record of 40 feet 6 inches. Dale jumped 41 feet one-half inch.

In the baseball throw Andrews broke his own record with a throw of 333 feet 6 inches.

The senior boys' 220 and 100-yard sprints proved the major thrills of the meet. Lorne MacGregor finished first in both events.

DOUBLE-WINNER

In the 100 yards MacGregor took the lead from the start and finished well in the lead. George "Porky" Andrews was second and Hank Rowe third.

In the 220 yards Hank Rowe took the lead at the start but soon lost out to MacGregor and Andrews. MacGregor hit the tape just a little ahead of Andrews.

There were only two competitors in the senior 440 yards. Bill Dale set the pace throughout the race and finished ahead of Hank Rowe, his only challenger.

In the intermediate boys' 440 yards Fred Smith scored an easy victory.

Dale gained an easy victory over Ian Elliott in the mile, with Tom Anstey coming in third.

MAINLANDER WINS $50,000

Miss Mary Walton, Vancouver Store Employee, Holds Ticket in Irish Sweep

Vancouver, May 28.—The family of Miss Mary Walton, Vancouver department store employee who held a ticket on Thankerton, the horse that placed third in the Epsom Downs Derby yesterday, is $50,000 richer.

Miss Walton bought the ticket, BX06972, under the nom-de-plume "Hopeful," from a former fellow worker, now unemployed, and gave it to her invalid mother, Mrs. William Walton, as a Mother's Day gift.

W. H. Rudd, who sold the ticket to Miss Walton, said he was in the store selling tickets to other employees when one of the clerks told Miss Walton she should buy the last one in the book to help him out.

Miss Walton had no intention of buying a sweepstake ticket but changed her mind under the circumstances. Rudd will receive more than $1,000 as seller of the lucky number.

An offer of $4,000 for a half-interest in the lucky ticket, made Tuesday by a party in England, was turned down.

When asked yesterday what she would do with the money Miss Walton said, "The money will certainly come in handy, but I haven't made any plans yet. What chance is there to do any figuring with a sale on in the store?"

Miss Walton would not reveal any of her family history but it was learned from fellow employees that she helps support her mother and invalid sister. The latter was injured fifteen years ago when kicked by a horse.

OVER THE TOP TO ANOTHER TRIUMPH

DOUBLE WINNER — RETAINS CROWN — RISING STAR

LORNE McGREGOR
victor in the senior 100 and 220 yards sprints.

HAYNES WINS OVER CARNERA

Negro Awarded Bout When Giant Italian Has Attack of Paralysis in Leg

New York, May 28.—Another of the bad breaks which have studded his fistic fortunes put old Primo Carnera, the lumbering Italian heavyweight, back among the second-raters today.

He lost his ten-round return battle with Leroy Haynes, the new Philadelphia sensation, at Ebbets Field yesterday evening when an attack of paralysis in his left leg forced him to leave the ring fifty seconds after the ninth round.

Haynes was ahead on points at the time and probably would have been returned a winner, anyway, but Carnera, by holding the colored boy on even terms throughout most of the fight, partly atoned for the three-round knockout Haynes scored in Philadelphia two months ago. Haynes was not as sensational as expected.

Disappointed and discouraged, Carnera would not discuss his ring future as his handlers worked on his legs in the dressing-room after the fight. He is to leave soon for an exhibition tour of Europe.

GRADS PLAY EL DORADO

Canada's Famous Basketball Squad in Title Series With Arkansas Team

Edmonton, May 28.—Seven tall young women—El Dorado, Ark., Oilers—rode into Edmonton yesterday for a three-of-five series with Edmonton Grads for the Underwood Trophy and the international women's basketball championship. First game will be played tonight.

Grads have been practicing three times a week for this series, a fact which illustrates how much the Edmonton team wants to win. Coach Percy Page has seldom drilled his charges more than twice a week.

But Grads have a score to settle. These same Oilers—as Durant Cardinals—in 1933 smeared Grads under the most humiliating route the Edmonton quintette has ever suffered. They won three straight over Grads in Edmonton.

Second game will be played Saturday and the third Monday. If further contests are necessary the teams will meet Wednesday and Friday of next week.

TWO BOXING CHAMPS SHOW

John Henry Lewis, Light-heavyweight Ruler, Meets Bob Godwin

New York, May 28. — Two champions will display their wares at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night with John Henry Lewis, the negro ruler of the light-heavyweights, topping the card.

Lewis, who hails from Phoenix, Ariz., encounters Bob Godwin, Daytona Beach, Fla., who has been a troublesome customer for the light-heavyweight rulers for several years, in the main ten-round bout.

Balthazar Sangchili, Spain, recognized as bantamweight champion by the International Boxing Union but not in the United States, continues his campaign for further recognition by taking on Lew Farber in another ten-rounder.

John Henry Lewis Is Easy Winner

Pittsburgh, May 28.—Light-heavyweight champion John Henry Lewis scored an easy decision over Charley Massare, Monongahelt, Pa., in a ten-round bout yesterday evening.

Lewis won every round and captured a unanimous decision. The negro fighter weighed 181 pounds and Massare 182¼.

Thomson Displays Brilliant Golf

Favorite Advances Through Fifth and Sixth Rounds of British Amateur Golf in Spectacular Style; Roger Wethered and Edward Storey Beaten

Canadian Press

St. Andrews, May 28.—Hector Thomson, favorite, continued his winning stride in the British amateur golf championship this afternoon when he defeated Andrew Jamieson 1 up in a sixth round match.

Cecil Ewing, who came through with an unexpected victory over Roger Wethered in the morning round, also advanced through the sixth round. He scored an easy 5 and 4 victory over Cameron Conn.

Thomson's spectacular progress through the tourney attracted wide attention.

In the fifth round this morning he eliminated Colin Brown 6 and 4 without losing a single hole. The former Scottish champion never had a chance against Thomson.

As the sixth round began Thomson was the only surviving player among those selected for the British Walker Cup team. Gordon Peters, former Glasgow champion, removed Harry Bentley of the cup team by a 2 and 1 margin this morning.

Cyril Tolley, twice former champion, gained a berth in the sixth round this morning. Tolley defeated Major W. H. M. Aitken, 5 and 4.

Harry Bentley was eliminated by G. B. Peters, 2 and 1, and C. Middleton triumphed over Luis Arana, crack Spanish golfer, by the same score.

SWEENEY BEATS STOREY

Robert Sweeney, young native of New York, now living in England, continued his advance by defeating the veteran British Walker Cup player, Edward F. Storey, 2 and 1, in a fifth round match.

Storey, runner up in the championship twelve years ago, went to pieces on the back nine and Sweeney finally squared the match at the fourteenth. Sweeney closed out his rival on the seventeenth, where Storey hooked his approach into the road.

James Ferrier, 1935 Australian amateur champion, eliminated C. W. Timmins, 1 up.

Morton Dykes also gained the sixth round with a 2 and 1 victory over Sam McKinlay, another former British Walker Cup player.

Von Cramm Gains Quarter-finals

Paris, May 28.—Gottfried Von Cramm, Germany, and Christian Boussus, France, moved in the quarter-final round of the French hard courts singles tennis championship today.

The German star defeated Gorgios Stalios, Greek champion, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

Boussus won from Adam Bavarowski, Austrian Davis Cup player, 4-6, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4.

Langford Has Auto Speedway

Lake District Will Stage First Races on Saturday, June 6

With Saturday, June 6, set as the date of the first big race on the new track, the Langford district is now the possessor of a fine auto speedway, modern in every facility.

The new acquisition to the lake district is the only one of its kind in British Columbia, and was built by Jack Taylor, well-known island resident.

Being short, wide and fast, the track is well oiled and consequently will be free of dust, and will be used for motorcycle racing as well as auto.

The infield, when completed, will be thrown open to local residents for sport purposes, furnishing ample room for baseball, softball and soccer. A grandstand seating 2,500 people and an eight-foot fence surrounding the track with a heavy guard rail in front of the stand, complete the up-to-date speedway.

TIGERS LOSE TO SAANICH

Handed 9 to 8 Defeat By Suburbanites in B Section Softball

Driving across four runs in a last-inning rally, the Saanich softball nine came from behind to defeat the Tigers 9 to 8 at Victoria West Park, in the feature B section softball fixture played yesterday evening. The win created a five-way tie for first place.

Togo Cleaners checked in with a 9 to 2 victory over the visiting Sidney nine at Savory Park. The winners sent four men the route in the first three innings to establish a fine lead.

An eighth-inning rally in which they brought in a trio of runs, for their only markers of the game, gave Painter's Bruins a 3 to 1 win over a fighting North Saanich Service Club squad at Memorial Park.

Navy A nine secured an 11 to 8 victory over the Hollywood Club in a seven-inning fixture at Admirals Road.

Colbert's Grocery triumphed over the Cooperage nine 11 to 7 in a B section match at Victoria West Park.

Anglers Meet This Evening

The first monthly meeting of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will be held this evening in the Chamber of Commerce at 8 o'clock. Those who have landed button fish this year will be presented with their medallions. Matters pertaining to the association's competitions will be discussed, as well as any other general business that may be brought up.

CLARRY FORAN TO LEAVE CLUB

Montreal, May 28.—Clarry Foran announced yesterday his resignation as coach of Montreal Football Club in the Interprovincial Football Union. Along with Foran's resignation came reports Jimmy Riddell, president of the club for many years, also had resigned.

Asked if the reports were true, Riddell said, "Well, there is a certain amount of truth in it, and it will be definite when my former associates meet all their obligations to me."

SARPOLIS TO MEET DAULA

Leading Heavyweights Slated For Main Event on Wrestling Show

Undefeated in the local ring, Tiger Daula, massive East Indian grappler, will return here Saturday evening to do battle in the main event with Dr. Karl Sarpolis, St. Louis, on promoter Fred Richardson's weekly mat show at the Tillicum gym.

It is four years since Sarpolis has appeared here. He was always popular and never failed to give a good performance.

Credited with victories over some of the big time wrestlers, Daula will be out to add Sarpolis to his list of victims. One of the best bouts ever put on in Victoria is expected.

Arrangements are now going forward to bill two good mixers for the semi-main event. Two local lads will perform in the opening tussle at 8.45 o'clock.

THE BIG SIX

Billy Sullivan, Cleveland catcher, returning to action for the first time since Sunday, smashed out five hits in six trips to the plate yesterday to boost his batting average to .443 and move right on the heels of the idle Bill Terry in the race for the major league leadership. Charles Gehringer, of the Tigers, replaced Joe Di Maggio, New York Yankees, in third place in the American League standings by getting a hit in four times at but, while Di Maggio could collect only one in six chances, dropping twelve percentage points.

The standings:

	G.	A.B.	R.	H.	Pct.
Terry, Giants	30	68	16	25	.455
Sullivan, Indians	24	79	11	35	.443

New York Giants Back In Tie For National League Lead

Hubbell Defeats Brooklyn; Cards Lose to Pirates

Southpaw Star Forced to Go Twelve Innings; St. Louis Downed 11 to 2

YANKEES TAKE OVERTIME TILT

There seems no keeping those New York Giants out of the National League lead for any length of time, despite their string of tough luck and the expert predictions that they're due to crack wide open any day.

Just a week after they last saw first place, they were back on top again today, deadlocked with the St. Louis Cardinals and boasting a winning streak that reached five straight yesterday with Carl Hubbell's mastery of his troublesome Brooklyn Dodger jinx.

The Giants' advance to a first-place tie, by a 5 to 4 twelve-inning victory over the Dodgers, headed a general reshuffling of the National League pack in yesterday's programme.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati moved up to third and fourth, with wins over the Cardinals 11 to 2 and Chicago 5 to 3, respectively, sending the Cubs back to fifth.

The Dodgers sank into the cellar again through defeat by the Giants and the Phillies climbed to seventh place with a 5 to 2 conquest of the Boston Bees.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

In the American League the New York Yanks outlasted the Boston Sox 9 to 8 in an eleven-inning ding-dong affair, which saw Manager Joe Cronin return to the Boston lineup for the first time since he broke a finger a month ago.

Cleveland and Chicago changed places again in their battle for the bottom berth in the first division, Cleveland moving up by out-slugging the helpless St. Louis Browns, 12 to 2, while the White Sox were being trimmed by Tommy Bridges and the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 2.

The Philadelphia Athletics-Washington Senators game was rained out.

COAST LEAGUE

They are still shuffling the spots around in the tight race for position in the Coast Baseball League.

Seattle's tribe chopped down the Oakland Oaks yesterday evening 6 to 5 to move back into second place while San Diego entered the fourth spot by nosing out the Seals, 7 to 6.

The Sacramento Senators closed the gap separating them from the sixth-place Portland Beavers to one and a half games when Nathan Andrews won a 2 to 0 pitching duel from Ad Liska.

Each winning club has made it two in a row. Rain kept Los Angeles and the Missions idle in San Francisco.

Andrews and Liska each hurled four-hit ball at Portland and surprisingly received perfect support.

Paul Gregory allowed the topnotch Oaks only five hits. With the aid of Shortstop Chet Smith's error in the eighth they pushed across three runs. Only two tallies, scored in the fifth were earned. La Gocca, Olds and Conlan hurled for the Acorns.

The Padres had to call on Archie Campbell to stop a four-run Seal rally in the ninth inning when Art Wells became easy prey for Lefty O'Doul's batters.

Parker, secretary of the Canadian Passenger Association here, and will affect both Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways.

These fares to the Pacific Coast will be on sale from June 1 to August 31 inclusive, with final return limit September 30. They will provide for three kinds of tickets, first class, tourist and coach. Added to these are special fares offered from May 15 with a return limit of October 31.

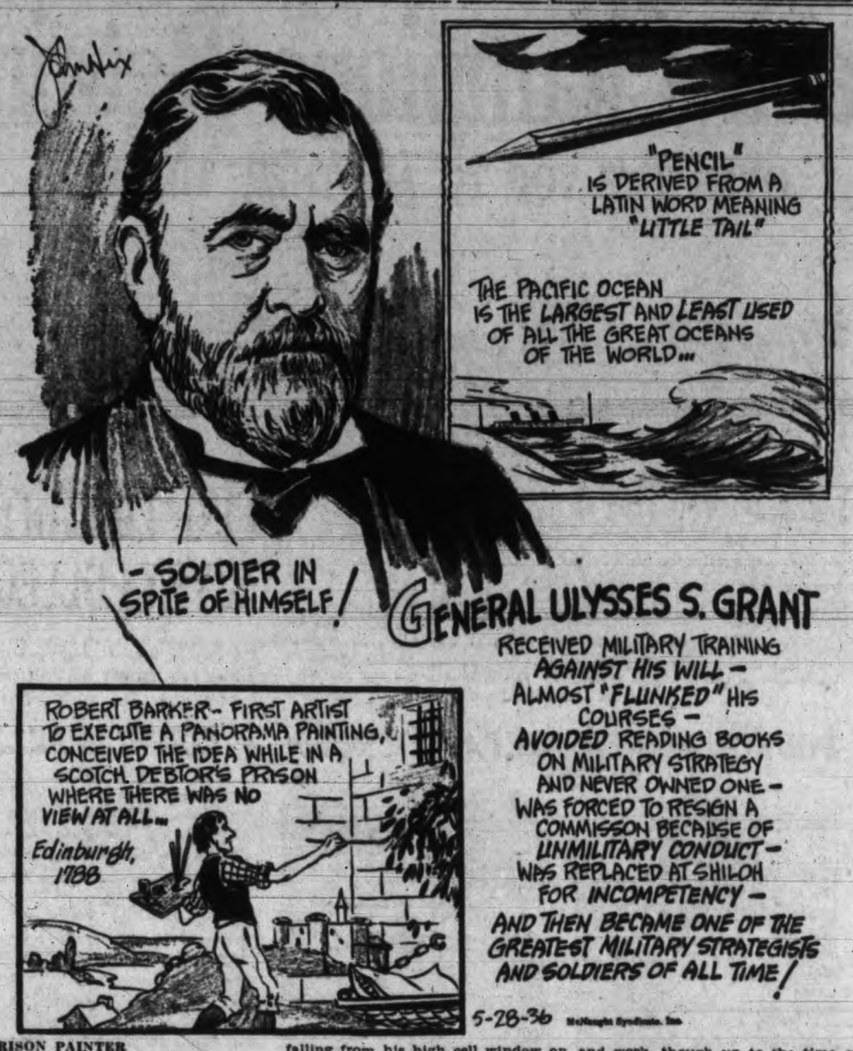
Travelers planning holidays in eastern Canada will also have a choice of three classes of travel, first, tourist or coach, with tickets available from June 1 to August 31 and limited to return on September 30. The longer period fare will be good from May to October 31.

Tickets to eastern Canada sold at first-class rate will be honored via the Great Lakes upon payment of meals and berth charge on steamers.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



PRISON PAINTER

Panorama paintings, pictures painted on the inside of a cylindrical surface and exhibited by either having the spectator stand in the centre of it and turn around to view it from every angle, or else being unrolled to pass before him in successive portions, were originally suggested by a German architectural painter, Breisig.

The first man to fully work out the idea, however, and actually put it into execution was Robert Barker, an artist of Kells, Ireland. Strange as it seems, the idea came to him while he ws imprisoned in Edinburgh for debt. The effect of the light falling from his high cell window on a letter which he was reading furnished him with the basis of the perspective and lighting effect which he later utilized in painting a panorama of Edinburgh, 1788.

To this day panorama paintings are illuminated from above.

SOLDIER IN SPITE OF HIMSELF

"I am more of a farmer than a soldier. I take little or no interest in military affairs . . ." These, the words of General U. S. Grant after he had become an outstanding military figure of all time, serve to illustrate the strange paradox in his career.

Though detesting a soldier's life and work, though up to the time of his becoming commander-in-chief of the northern forces in the Civil War he was considered incompetent, disobedient and almost a total failure as an officer and military man, the strategy and executive ability he displayed in his Civil War campaign rank him high in the annals of the great military leaders of history.

PENCIL ORIGIN

The English word "pencil," borrowed from the Latin word "pencillus" which meant "a little tail," was first applied to a brush of hair or bristles used by artists.

Tomorrow—The Arctic "Nero."

Doc Sarpolis In Win at Portland

Portland, Ore., May 28.—Dr. Karl Sarpolis, 220, Chicago, gained two of three falls from Chief Chiwaki, 253, gypsy wrestler, here yesterday evening.

URGES INQUIRY INTO DEATHS

Canadian Press

Ottawa, May 28.—Deaths of five men in longshoring operations at Montreal this season gave rise to a question in the House of Commons yesterday. Hon. H. H. Stevens (Reconstructionist, Kootenay East), asked if the government was aware of the accidents, if it were taking any steps to investigate the conditions under which longshoremen worked and what conclusions, if any, had been reached on inspection of apparatus used in loading and unloading ships in public harbors.

Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Marine, said he had no information about the matter, but would inquire from departmental officials. He remarked the apparatus used was supplied either by the ships or the longshoremen and had nothing to do with the operation of the harbor.

Rushaway Second In Race Earnings

Great Thoroughbred Owned By A. G. Tarn, Winnipeg, Has Earned $33,520 So Far This Year; Winner of Three Derbies; Bold Venture Tops List With $65,800

New York, May 28.—The record-breaking performance of A. G. Tarn's Rushaway in winning the Illinois and Latonia Derbys within twenty-four hours placed the Winnipeg-owned gelding second to Morton L. Schwartz's Bold Venture on the list of leading three-year-old money winners.

Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, has won $65,800 this year and Rushaway, which also won the Louisiana Derby, has a total of $33,520. Rushaway was not nominated for the Kentucky Derby or any of the rich eastern stakes, and has slight prospects of overtaking Bold Venture, although the Schwartz colt is not expected to race again this year because of a bowed tendon, suffered in training.

Joseph E. Widener's Brevity, second in the Withers Mile, is third with $29,600; Mrs. Silas B. Mason's He Did, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, is fourth with $26,250, and Ogden Phipps's White Cockade, surprise winner of the Withers, is fifth with $18,225.

The standings may be revised by the result of the rich Belmont Stake June 6, when such speedy racers as Brevity, White Cockade, Red Rain and Granville run for a share of the three-year-old honors left undefended with the retirement of Bold Venture.

TWO-YEAR-OLD TITLE

The two-year-old championship will not be decided until the rich stakes are run later in the year. The temporary money-winning leaders are Goldey F., $13,000; Apogee, $10,095; Murph, $9,240; Airflame, $8,525, and Court Scandal, $4,575. Goldey F. and Apogee are fillies.

Rushaway's triumph in the Latonia Derby, incidentally, resulted in the fastest time for a mile and a quarter raced by a three-year-old this year. The big black streaked over the route in 2.02 3-5, while Bold Venture's Derby time was 2.03 3-5. Rushaway carried 121 pounds and Bold Venture 126.

MALAYA PAIR SEEKING HOME

Public Works Official From East Divided Between Here and California

After spending twenty-eight years of his life in tropic Malaya, Walter J. Smith, who has just retired from the public works service in that country, is in Victoria with his wife, seeking a more temperate climate in which to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are registered at the Empress Hotel from Seremban, Federated Malaya States.

Victoria specially appeals to Mr. Smith, but his wife is impressed by southern California, so it is a toss-up as to where they will eventually decide to live.

"You know, the women usually have their way," he mused, deliberating over the respective merits of Vancouver Island and California.

70,000 MILES BY CAR

Since leaving Malaya, Mr. and Mrs. Smith have traveled extensively. They crossed the Atlantic to New York, purchased a car in Philadelphia and motored 10,000 miles through the United States, first seeing Florida and then heading across the country to Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mr. Smith has friends in Saanich and he came here to look them up before deciding where to locate.

The low market price for rubber and tin, the country's major industries, has made times difficult in Malaya, Mr. Smith said, but rubber recently took a slight rise and things are somewhat brighter there.

Tin has gone lower in price but the drop has been partly offset by increased production at the mines.

The export of both rubber and tin has been restricted in Malaya with a view to stabilizing price levels.

Tremendous activity is going on at Singapore, where the great British naval and air base is approaching completion, and Mr. Smith states that still further development work is contemplated.

BISHOP TALKS OF AUSTRALIA

Members of Rotary Club Hear of Attractions of Continent "Down Under"

Rt. Rev. G. E. Sexton, Bishop-coadjutor of Columbia, took members of the Rotary Club on an interesting verbal trip through Australia at their luncheon meeting today.

"A lot of English people, in what I think is very bad taste, often ask Australians if they sprang from convicts," the bishop said in his introductory remarks. "I remember I was asked that once at a meeting very similar to this.

"When I replied, I told the story of an Australian lady who was going to take a trip to England and wanted to take her maid along with her, but the maid refused to go. 'Why, what's you're reason for not wanting to visit the Old Country?' the lady asked. 'Well,' said the maid, 'Isn't England the terrible place where those convicts came from?' "

Sidney, Bishop Sexton said, was the third largest city in the British Empire. It was famed for its wonderful harbor, and at the moment had the bridge with the largest span in the world.

Melbourne was more attractive than Sidney and almost as large.

Ballarat, another city in Australia, was reputed to have the widest streets in the world. Adelaide was laid out in squares and was bounded by park lands. It was noted for its culture.

Hobart, the capital of Tasmania, was really a garden, the bishop declared. They grew all kinds of fruit there, but they had no market and he had seen them feeding peaches to pigs.

The speaker noted that there were no wooden houses in the cities of Australia. This was not because there was lack of wood but because, for some reason, probably fire, the authorities did not allow them.

TOURIST ATTRACTION

The cathedrals in the Antipodes were finer than those in Canada. The only one worthy of the name in the Dominion was Christ Church in Victoria, according to the bishop. The cathedral had put Victoria on the map, for the carillon, being cast in England, had drawn an enormous amount of publicity, and, he expected, it would be a great tourist attraction.

Bishop Sexton felt that there was too much centralization in Australia. In this vast territory, almost as big as Canada, there were only 7,000,000 people and most of them were in the great cities.

Australia suffered badly from "nuisances." Dust storms would turn day into night, and grasshoppers were often so abundant they would hold up trains. It was a pastoral land and yet there was little rain in some areas. He had been in one place where they had not seen rain for three years. Rabbits were also a terrible scourge. They were so numerous that "you could almost play football with them."

G. Hamilton Harman, manager of the Bank of Montreal, introduced the bishop coadjutor. Herb Pendray was in the chair.

T. Clifford Whelan, assistant manager at the Empress Hotel, will leave the city on Saturday for Banff, where, during the summer season he will again assume the duties of assistant manager at the Banff Springs Hotel.

Mr. Whelan states the reservation list at Banff is heavy.

Thomas Rathe, assistant manager at the Hotel Saskatchewan, Regina, Sask., will take Mr. Whelan's place at the Empress Hotel for the summer

The total bank clearings in the city for the week ended May 28 were $1,315,607, according to a statement issued today by the Victoria Clearing House. The figures for the same period last year were $1,251,056.

HENRY HEARNS DIED TODAY

Former Sergeant-at-arms in Legislature; Came Here Sixty Years Ago

Henry Hearns, whose patriarchal figure as sergeant-at-arms of the Provincial Legislature made him familiar to parliamentarians and the public for some years, passed away this morning in the Royal Jubilee Hospital, aged eighty-nine years.

Mr. Hearns was born in Dublin, Ireland, of English parents and as a youth entered the civil service in the East Indies. Sixty years ago he left the East Indies on a world tour in a sailing ship, via Cape Horn and on arriving in Victoria decided to settle here. He started work at Sooke with the first logging camp and mill established in British Columbia.

He also worked for the E. and N. Railway, felling the first tree when clearing the right of way.

For many years Mr. Hearns had a dyeing and cleaning business here, and was also associated with the B.C. Dye Works for a long perod.

He was a life-long Liberal and worked indefatigably in the Liberal cause. For eight years he was sergeant-at-arms in the Legislature, retiring in 1928.

Mr. Hearns is survived by his widow and one daughter, Hilda, at the family residence, 938 Craigflower Road, and two sons, Douglas and Ronald, in Victoria.

The remains are reposing at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

TO DO WORK ON PEACE OUTLET

Highway Construction Toward Finlay Fork's as Part of New Programme

Work on the Fort St. James-Manson Creek section of the highway route into the Peace River block, will be done this year as part of the Dominion-provincial programme, it was learned at the Legislative Buildings today.

Details of the work are being withheld pending final ratification of the entire works scheme.

It is also expected some location work on the other end of the highway, within the Peace River block will be carried out.

Premier Pattullo, who referred to the projected work in an address last night, was pressed for details today but said he was still awaiting final word from Ottawa.

At the present time, along the 194-mile stretch between Fort St. James and Finlay Forks there is thirty miles of graded road north of Fort St. James and a trail from the end of this to Manson Creek.

Along the other section there is a rough trail to some thirty miles west of Hudson's Hope, with a gap of about fifty miles to Finlay Forks.

FINE LIBRARY GIVEN COLLEGE

Relatives of Late B. C. Nicholas Make Gift to Institution He Supported

The fine library of the late B. C. Nicholas has been presented to Victoria College by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Nicholas, and his sisters, Mrs. F. Mawhinney and Mrs. L. Macmillan, it was announced this morning by Percy Elliott, principal of the college.

The books will be placed in a special section at the college, and will bear suitably worded book plates.

"The principal and staff of Victoria College acknowledge the generous gift of Mrs. Nicholas, Mrs. L. Macmillan and Mrs. F. Mawhinney of the extensive library of their deceased son and brother, the late B. C. Nicholas," a statement issued from the college said this morning.

"This gift, valuable in itself, is enhanced by the remembrance of one whose voice supported our institution from its inception, and who gave so fully of his time and talents to assist the college in every way possible.

"This gift will keep ever before our staff and students the memory of a wise counsellor, whose benevolent and noble example shall continue to spur our youth on to the high goal of useful and unselfish citizenship."

COURT RULING ON TRUSTEES

Is Sought in Connection With Estate of Late John Clayton

An application for the appointment of trustees for the beneficiaries of the estate of John Clayton was made before Mr. Justice Manson in the Supreme Court chambers this morning and was adjourned for authorities under the Trustee Act to be presented.

The application was made by Frank Hall and was opposed by H. A. Maclean, K.C., who produced the bulky books of proceedings in the B.C. Court of Appeal connected with the estate which has been before the court frequently in the last twelve months.

Mr. Maclean asked for delay until the decision of the Court of Appeal had been handed down. He anticipated the appeal court would give judgment at the present sitting and submitted that so many points were involved that it would be unsafe to name new trustees until the judgment of the appeal court had been given.

Mr. Maclean suggested the matter be stood over to come up on one day's notice when the appeal court decision was given. It had been said that Mrs. E. E. Haynes did not wish to continue but he understood that Mrs. Haynes was ready to continue to act as trustee until the decision of the appeal court had been given

Mr. Hall claimed that Mrs. Haynes, who was now acting as trustee, had no legal right to do so. He recalled that her husband was the sole surviving trustee up to the time of his death. When he died Mrs. Haynes, as executor for her husband, took over his duties as trustee of the Clayton estate. Mr. Hall claimed that she had not the legal right to do so although she had the right to name trustees. She had not done this and the estate was in the position now of having no legal representative and not being looked after properly. In the interest of all persons it should be in capable hands.

Mr. Maclean replied the estate was being looked after by A. E. Haynes and Co. who knew all about it and had looked after it since 1919. The company was in touch with the beneficiaries and if they were not satisfied he thought the application would have been made sooner.

Counsel returned to court with authorities on the legal right of the present trustee to act in that capacity and these were being given consideration this afternoon.

City Is Given Horned Toad

Tiny Reptile Arrives at City Hall From Texas Centennial Committee

"Texennial," a horned toad christened today by John Baxter, mayor's secretary and self-appointed custodian of the tiny reptile, reposed in the city clerk's office today.

What the city would do with the little fellow, who came all the way from Texas in a cardbdard box packed with excelsior, was a question lengthy debate had failed to settle at noon.

The toad, "ferocious looking as a lion but harmless as a kitten," according to a note on the box, was sent as a souvenir from the Texas Centennial Exposition to the mayor.

Employees searched the City Hall today for flies to feed their new pet but the rooms failed to provide any insects and the cardboard box traveler continued his fast.

COAL OUTPUT MAKES GAINS

Island Production in April Up 12 Per Cent; B.C. Total 113,000 Tons

With a gain of 12 per cent in April, coal production on Vancouver Island was maintained at a considerably higher level than last year, according to the monthly bulletin of the Department of Mines.

The island output last month was 63,518 tons, compared with 56,464 tons in April last year.

In the East Kootenay district an increase from 30,683 tons to 38,747 tons was recorded, and the total British Columbia production for the month was up about 13 per cent from 99,195 tons to 113,385 tons.

KAMLOOPS TROUT IN THETIS LAKE

The re-stocking of Thetis Lake has not been in vain, for this morning three Kamloops trout which were in the pink of condition and weighing in the neighborhood of one pound each, were caught by Fred Saunders.

Three years ago the city stocked the lake with Kamloops trout in the hope of providing sport for fishermen. The first good results were in evidence this morning. Mr. Saunders was trolling with a spinner and worm and said that a number of fish were rising.

Col. Hilton Green and Mrs. Green of Taunton, Somerset, England, have gone up-island on a two-weeks' fishing trip. Another visitor from the Old Country, Major H. R. Crailsham, London, has also gone up-island and will try fishing spots around Parksville, Qualicum and Alberni.

NEW POTATOES MOVE HIGHER

Prices Advance 75 Cents a Sack; Still Surplus of Old Potatoes

The new potato market surged upward today with imported stock advancing 75 cents a sack. There is no "potato famine" here, however, as wholesalers said there was a large quantity of last year's crop still to be sold.

New potato prices were quoted at from $5.75 to $6.00 a sack, wholesale, imported, and $9.00 on local, this morning, while old potatoes were from $1.40 to $2.00 a sack.

The reason for the advance was given as a shortage of supplies from the California producing areas. New potatoes are expected to continue high for about two weeks.

DISORDERS IN STRIKES IN U.S.
Labor Heads Estimate 46,000 Have Quit Jobs in Twenty States
Associated Press

New York, May 28. — Strikes in United States industry and agriculture were in progress in twenty states today, marked by scattered disorders.

The number of workers affected was estimated by labor leaders at more than 460,00.

Ilion, N.Y., police said 100 uniformed private detectives who had been sent to guard the Remington Rand plant had been recalled by company officials, who said it would reopen today.

Three men were arrested on a charge of assaulting a worker at the plant, which was surrounded by 1,000 pickets.

Dallas, Texas, police patrolled Taxi Company offices after two passengers had been jerked from taxis by sympathizers with 600 striking cab drivers.

DOMINION THEATRE

In "Peg of Old Drury," which is being shown at the Dominion Theatre, there are no fewer than ten famous historical personages, and a list of their names reads like a guide to the National Portrait Gallery.

Here is the list: David Garrick, Dr. Johnson, James Boswell, Oliver Goldsmith, the elder Pitt, sir Joshua Reynolds, Alexander Pope, Mr. Rich (the partner of Mr. Gay of Beggar's Opera fame), Kitty Clive the actress, and, of course, Peggy Woffington.

AT COLUMBIA

OTTO KRUGER
who plays in "Two Sinners," which is now the feature attraction at the Columbia Theatre.

AL JOLSON WILL BE STARRED HERE
Al Jolson, probably the world's greatest entertainer, starring in what is heralded as the most pretentious musical extravaganza in which he has yet appeared, "The Singing Kid," the latest of First National's mammoth spectacles, will be the feature attraction at the Dominion Theatre starting Friday.

The production is a splendid human interest drama which swings intermittently between rollicking comedy and heart-wrenching pathos. It is full of color, glamour and romance, with two great specialty numbers in which scores of beautiful dancing girls appear, and with many catchy new songs.

The first of the big numbers, both of which were staged by the dance maestro, Bobby Connolly, is entitled "I Love to Sing-a." This takes place in a specially-built radio broadcasting station set and then moves to the street, where beautiful girls and men, in the roles of pedestrians, dance themselves to a smiling and happy death to the tune of a mad, melodious melody.

Plaza Shows Fine Drama
Fox's Film's "Way Down East," now at the Plaza Theatre, is a moving and revealing picture of the elemental drama of a woman's love.

With a setting in bleak New England of the 1890's, the film unfolds a tale of a young girl who had loved well, but not wisely.

When the young girl's past is uncovered by gossip she finds herself struggling against the self-righteous and prideful society of New England.

Also being shown in the second feature is Warner Oland in "Charlie Chan's Secret."

CASTLE—TRETHEWEY

Toronto, May 28 (Canadian Press) —Castle-Trethewey Mines reported net profit, before depreciation, of $40,524 for the year ended March 31 last. Income totaled $57,945, of which $52,833 was derived from dividends. The balance was sundry revenues, chifely interest. Expenditure totaled $17,410.

"Village Tale" At the Atlas

The youngster, who despite his grey-blue eyes and golden curls is a regular "he-boy," and rides horseback, swims, and takes part in all school sports, was for five consecutive years accorded first prize in a St. Louis Perfect Baby Contest.

Roger's parents attribute their son's physical perfection to the fact that they have regulated his diet, recreation, and rest since earliest babyhood, in accord with the rules laid down by the baby clinic in St Louis.

Also being shown as the second feature is "Wings Over Ethiopia."

"Two Sinners" At Columbia
Margaret Seddon, who appears in Republic's "Two Sinners," which Arthur Lubin directed from Warwick Deeping's novel "Two Black Sheep," and which is now at the Columbia Theatre, is conceded to be the first "mother of the screen."

While it is true there have been screen players who have essayed mother roles, nevertheless, Margaret Seddon rightfully earned that title when, with the passing of "Mother Maurice" of the old Vitagraph Company, Miss Seddon was signed by that company to portray mother roles.

"Two Sinners" stars Otto Kruger, Martha Sleeper, Minna Gombell, Ferdinand Munier and Cora Sue Collins.

Also showing are Frank Hagney and Ken Maynard in "Western Frontier."

Capitol to Show Beautiful Story
Freddie Bartholomew is the first actor to play "Little Lord Fauntleroy" without benefit of the traditional long golden curls and plush suit in the Selznick International film version of the world-famous Frances Hodgson Burnett story, which co-stars the popular child star with Dolores Costello Barrymore, which will open at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

In all other respects, however, Hugh Walpole, who adapted "Little Lord Fauntleroy" to the screen, has adhered to the universally beloved story of the little American boy who became a nobleman, went to England to live in a castle with the irascible Earl of Dorincourt and transformed that gentleman from a surly old bear to a lovable old grandfather.

Dolores Costello Barrymore makes her return to the screen in the role of "Dearest," the little fellow's beautiful and adored young mother; C. Aubrey Smith is seen as the Earl; Guy Kibbee and Mickey Rooney play Fauntleroy's American friends, Mr. Hobbs and Dick, the bootblack.

Prices Fluctuate Narrowly Today On New York Exchange

New York, May 28.—Stocks moved narrowly today. A few aircrafts and specialties received support, but the former favorites were inclined to slip moderately.

The close was irregular. Quiet dealings were the rule throughout, transfers approximating 750,000 shares.

The news was uninspiring and traders reverted to their wary attitude of the past several weeks.

Wright Aeronautical was an isolated strong spot, this ten-share issue getting up about eight points at one time. American Woolen preferred was also up three at its best.

Resistant issues included Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Sperry, United Aircraft, Curtiss-Wright, International Paper preferred and Union Carbide.

On the other hand, Columbian Carbon was off three. Backward tendencies were displayed by U.S. Steel, General Motors, Westinghouse, Schenley, Standard Oil of California, Southern Pacific, Anaconda and N.Y. Central.

U.S. Industrial Alcohol stiffened despite a cut in the dividend rate, but fell back later.

Wheat Quotations Show Gains Today On Grain Markets

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, May 28. — In the wake of bullish reports of excessive heat and deficiency of subsoil moisture over most of the grain-growing areas of western Canada and the northwestern United States, wheat prices mounted today.

Values closed 1⅜ to 1½ cents higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, May at 75½, July 75⅛ to 75⅝ and October 76¾ cents.

Pre-closing profit-taking pared the day's extreme gains of nearly 2 cents a bushel, but the market at the finish was strong.

Temperatures of ninety degrees or more were reported from most points in the grain-growing sections. The heat wave was reported to be rapidly absorbing sub-soil moisture, already deficient in southern Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Today's foreign movement totaled an estimated 400,000 bushels.

Prices at Minneapolis soared 2¼ cents a bushel, and nearly a cent at Chicago. Liverpool rallied to close ⅜d higher to ⅛d lower.

Cash grains trading was quiet.

Chicago, May 28.—Three cents jump of prices at Minneapolis and reports some sections of spring crop territory are suffering from high temperatures strengthened wheat markets everywhere today.

Apprehension over high temperatures was increased by word that dry conditions prevail over a fairly large part of the spring wheat belt. Something of an offset was possibilities of showers.

Wheat closed firm, ⅛ to ⅝ above yesterday's finish, July 84⅛ to 84¼, September 84 to 84⅛; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower, July 59⅞ to 60; oats, ⅛ to ¼ up, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents down.

Tarzan And the Fire Gods

Soon the mysterious Pillar of Baal stood wholly revealed in the weird African night, and the hideous image of the blood-thirsty god looked down upon his victims—Lady Beth Barclay and the golden Arbela. "PULL!" Niarchus cried. "Now shall they know the fury of Baal!"

Once again Lady Beth heard the mournful, terrifying creak of the hidden windlass. The rope drew taut. The two girls felt themselves pulled forward. Soon their flesh would be seared and penetrated by the strange rays that emanated from the lethal column! . . .

. . . Meanwhile, Dr. Jeremiah Jones awoke from his tree-crotch slumber. He was startled to see that night had fallen and a brilliant moon rode high in the sky. He looked about him. With a sigh of relief he noted that there was no sign of the lion that had pursued him.

Dr. Jones remembered that before he had fallen asleep he had seen a village to the north. Perhaps he could find food there. He climbed from the tree and stated toward the now deserted abode of the Baalites, unaware of the web that fate was weaving to entangle him.

The Gumps

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My parents are going to get a divorce, although they are still on friendly terms. My father comes to the house nearly every night and is very nice to us. I am a girl twelve years old and I am very sensitive about this divorce and feel that it will disgrace me for life. I have a few very close girl friends and to keep them from finding out about it I have told them a great many lies. Please tell me what I should do about this lying. Shall I keep on with it? MARY ELLEN.

Answer—No, no, you poor, little bewildered kid. You will only get yourself in deeper trouble and make the situation more difficult by lying about it. You will lose your friends more surely by telling them falsehoods than you would by telling them the truth, for they will find out that you have deceived them and lose all confidence in you.

It is folly to try to hide the family skeleton. The door always pops open at the wrong time, or somebody peeks through the keyhole and whispers what he thinks he saw to somebody else and that starts all the gossiping tongues to wagging. The result is that everybody rattles the bones and tells an exaggerated tale about them. Everything is made to appear ten times as badly as it is. So when anything unpleasant happens in a family it is far better to make no mystery about it, but just to tell the plain truth about it and open the closet door so that your friends and neighbors may see for themselves what is in it. That satisfies their curiosity and stills their tongues, because it leaves them nothing to speculate about.

If your mother and father are going to get a divorce, you can't keep it a secret. It will be published in the newspapers. No doubt all of your acquaintances know about it already, so you are doing a silly thing in telling your pitiful little lies. They discredit you and do not save your mother's and father's faces. While you need not broadcast their matrimonial differences to the world, you had best tell the truth about it when you have to speak of it.

* * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have been married a year, am terribly in love with my husband and I am certain he loves me very much, too. However, he has recently opened a business of his own and he is so anxious to make this venture a success that he works every night until midnight. I scarcely know I am married to him except on week-ends. I work myself in an office, so the days are all right, but my evenings are very lonely and his conversation, when at home, is made up mostly of his work and his plans and prospects. What can I do? I can't go out alone. My friends have their men folks and I am just out in the cold. A LONELY BRIDE.

Answer—I think the thing for you to do is to try to be a good sport about this situation. If your husband was leaving you alone every night to play poker with boys downtown or step out with some other woman, then you would be justified in thinking he was giving you a raw deal and for pitying yourself as a poor neglected wife.

But he isn't doing that. He is working himself half to death to try to get a start in the world and to build up a business that will enable him to keep you soft and comfortable and give you the pretty things you crave. Instead of backing him up and telling him what a fine fellow he is and how you admire him, you sit down and whine and cry because he isn't at home every evening and can't take you out to the movies.

You are a business girl and you must know that it is a hard thing to get any new enterprise launched. Every business at the beginning has to be watched and tended as carefully as if it were a sick baby. Every expense has to be cut. Every opportunity taken advantage of. Every new customer cultivated. Nobody in the world but the man who has his all invested in it, whose every hope and ambition is tied up in it, is going to do the watchful waiting that is necessary to make it a success.

Of course, it is hard on you being left to spend the evenings alone, but as your husband is sacrificing so much, don't you think it is up to you to make a few sacrifices yourself? Don't you think you might be cheerful about the sacrifices you are called upon to make and help him by boosting him up, instead of taking the heart out of him by complaining about being lonesome?

As your evenings are long, why don't you go to night school? If you don't want to take a literary course, why don't you take up domestic science and learn how to cook, or how to make your own dresses and trim your own hats? That would be useful knowledge for you to have as long as you live.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—What do you think about girls paying the way of boys to the parties and dances they ask them to? All my friends do it and don't understand why I refuse to. I feel it is going to be the ruination of the young men and make them just common spongers. What do you think? KAY.

Answer—I agree with you to a certain extent, but where boys and girls work together and earn virtually the same salaries I don't see why either one should pay the other's way. They should go Dutch treat. Undoubtedly, however, it is true that it is undermining the manhood of boys for girls to be so anxious for a date that they are willing to pay their escorts to the theatre or a party or any place of amusement. It turns the boy into a male parasite and there is nothing lower than that. DOROTHY DIX.

Uncle Wiggily and the House Wren

By HOWARD R. GARIS

On a sunny afternoon Nurse Jane said to Uncle Wiggily: "You know, Uncle Wiggily, it's been quite a while since you visited Uncle Butter, your goat gentleman friend, isn't it? I've just finished baking some rhubarb pies. Would you like to take him one?"

"Now, that is an idea!" the bunny man exclaimed, wiggling his left ear to show he was feeling good. "Is the pie hot, so it will give off a lovely smell as I carry it through the woods?"

"It is," Nurse Jane replied.

"Hum," Uncle Wiggily said, as though he thought of something new. "In that case it may make me hungry. And since I don't want to eat part of Uncle Butter's pie, perhaps you'd better give me a piece from another pie before I start. Eh, Nurse Jane?"

The muskrat lady laughed and in a few moments Uncle Wiggily was nibbling gaily away at a large, warm slice. Then he took the goat's pie, that Nurse Jane had already wrapped, and started off.

He took a short cut through a grove of maple trees, because he knew there was a house in the grove that was not yet opened for the summer and he thought there might be an adventure near it. Empty houses were like that sometimes, he said to himself. You never know what you'd find there.

VOICE BEHIND A TREE

When he came to the house he walked all around it, carefully watching closely. It was a real house where real people lived in the summer. And what do you think? At the back Uncle Wiggily saw that a tree had been blown down and was resting against the side.

"Ho, they'll have to fix that," Uncle Wiggily murmured. "I wonder if—"

But at that moment he heard a peculiar noise, as if some one were sighing in a very tired voice. It seemed to come from behind the tree.

"Is there anyone in this house?" Uncle Wiggily called. "Someone who needs help?"

"Yes—I do!" the voice cried. "I'm a house wren and I was asleep in the little hole I use for a nest and the tree blew down and covered the opening and now I can't get out! And I'm very hungry!"

"Ho!" the rabbit gentleman exclaimed. "Well, that's too bad, Mr. House Wren! But, goodness, I can't move the tree—it's too heavy for me! Maybe I can figure out a way—" And just then he did think of a way. "I'll be right back, Mr. House Wren!" he said loudly. "I know how I can get you out!"

He hurried as fast as he could to Uncle Butter's home. The goat gentleman was very glad to see his friend and Uncle Wiggily told him what had happened at the empty house. "Will you help me move the tree?" the bunny man asked. "And let the house wren out?"

"Will I? I should say I will!" Uncle Butter declared. "And we'll take the pie with us so the wren may have a piece! Come on, Uncle Wiggily!"

THEY MOVE THE TREE

The two ran back to the house. The wren was still sighing, for he wasn't sure how the tree was going to be moved away from the opening. It seemed a very large tree to the little bird.

Uncle Butter was quite strong, however, even if he was rather elderly. He stood off a bit, lowered his horns and rushed at the tree.

"It moved a little!" Uncle Wiggily cried. "Try again, Uncle Butter—and I'll push, too!"

The goat did so. He butted that tree as hard as he could and when it was jolted out from the house Uncle Wiggily had a stick ready and he thrust it between the tree and the small opening where the house wren lived.

"Now, fly out!" the rabbit gentleman panted. "You're free, Mr. House Wren! Quick, before the tree springs back again!"

The house wren did as he was told. And he got out none too soon, either, for the stick broke and the tree once more covered up the hole.

But he was free and wasn't he grateful, though! He and Uncle Wiggily and Uncle Butter ate the rhubarb pie and had a fine time.

And tomorrow night, if the dictionary doesn't spell "rabbit" with only one B, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily and the rainbow.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1936

Threatening aspects are discerned today, according to astrology. Under this planetary government the sense of fate as an inexorable power may be depressing.

In the early morning labor is under an unfortunate rule of the stars which stimulates rebellion and possible violence. Resentment of authority may be widespread and may affect the young.

Uranus is in an aspect that promises much for those who have foresight in business and for those who use their brains in professions that require the application of logic.

There is a forecast of rush work on airplanes and changes in naval plans for the United States. New leaders in federal affairs are prognosticated. While political lines may be sharply accentuated in the national campaign, world conditions will cause united sentiment on army and navy expansion through the coming summer, it is foretold.

Mars is in a position very menacing to peace in small organizations as well as in government affairs. Families may be sadly affected by differences of opinion and policy.

The mania for speculation will be exceedingly strong during the coming summer, when there may be collapse of a financial concern of wide connections.

Travel is under a configuration that promises an extraordinary number of tourists on land and sea. There is a prognostication of accidents caused by explosions or fires. Labor troubles may result in serious difficulties and delays.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of careful financial policies that include changes in methods and in employees. This applies to households as much as to business offices.

Children born on this day probably will be temperamental and high-spirited. Subjects of this sign usually have great possibilities.

Patrick Henry, statesman and orator, was born on this day, 1736. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Sarah, first Duchess of Marlborough, 1660, and Charles II, King of England, 1630.

NEWTON KER WILL RETIRE

He Will Be Succeeded in Post of C.P.R. Land Agent By Clark McBain

Retirement of Newton J. Ker from the post of land agent for the company in British Columbia and his succession by Clark W. McBain, industrial, right-of-way and lease agent, was announced at Vancouver headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Railway today.

Land and right-of-way departments, effective June 1, will be amalgamated into one department with Mr. McBain in charge with the title of land agent.

Though retiring as land agent, a post he has filled for the past twenty-three years, Newton J. Ker will remain a member of the B.C. advisory committee of the C.P.R.'s department of natural resources. He is approaching his seventieth birthday.

Newton Ker was an engineer of much experience both in railway and civic branches when he came to Vancouver in 1913 to take over the then booming Shaughnessy Heights residential area and other land schemes of the company on the Coast. He had been city engineer at Ottawa from 1899 to 1912 when he left to join the C.P.R. and prior to that he had been assistant city engineer in Toronto from 1890 to 1899.

Born in Brantford, Ont., and educated in Brantford and Toronto schools he was graduated in 1887 from the School of Science, Toronto, and, being a nephew of P. A. Peterson, a former chief engineer of the C.P.R., he took naturally to railway engineering.

Chiefly concerned with development of Shaughnessy Heights and other C.P.R. residential areas in Vancouver, Mr. Ker's activities, however, also included other company lands on the Coast, and in 1921 he was made a member of the B.C. advisory committee of his company's natural resources department and a director of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway and later, in 1924, became land agent for the E. and N., administering important Vancouver Island holdings.

Though but forty-five years of age, Clark W. McBain is known in C.P.R. circles as a "young veteran." He was born in Winnipeg, joining the company in the engineering department there in 1905. In 1907 he came to Vancouver as secretary to the general superintendent but returned to Winnipeg in 1908 to "write for" the superintendent, and, a year later, for the assistant to the vice-president. He was promoted to the post of chief clerk in the real estate department in Winnipeg in 1911 and in 1915 was appointed real estate agent, which position he held until 1929 when he came to Vancouver as industrial, right-of-way and lease agent.

He has made a great success of his department since coming to the Coast and has become well known to the Vancouver business community.

CASUALTIES DURING WAR GAMES

Three United States navy sea fighters sustained "injuries" in the war games held in the Pacific off the Panama Canal, it was revealed with announcement that the U.S.S. New Mexico, from whose deck the above picture was taken during the manoeuvres, and the U.S.S. Mississippi, which follows, were forced to quit because of turbine trouble. The third casualty, the U.S.S. Minneapolis, rammed a freighter in Balboa Harbor.

Emma Alexander Will Arrive This Evening — Japanese Ship Has Many Passengers — Celtic Monarch Taking Lumber Today—Empress of Japan Sails Saturday

The waterfront will welcome the liner Emma Alexander, on her first trip of the season, this evening at 9 o'clock, at which time she is scheduled to reach the Rithet piers from San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco. She will remain here until midnight before proceeding to Seattle, and will return Saturday evening to sail at midnight for California ports.

The Ss. H. F. Alexander is now preparing to start her first northbound voyage of the season. She will leave San Francisco Saturday afternoon, and will be here, on her way south, Tuesday evening.

COMING FROM JAPAN

There are 161 passengers aboard the Japanese motorship Hikawa Maru, now inbound from Japan, and due at William Head early next Monday morning. For Vancouver the ship has 2,450 tons of general freight, fourteen first, twelve tourist and fifty third class passengers. For Seattle there are sixteen first, nineteen tourist and fifty third class.

LUMBER SHIPS

On her first visit to this port, the freighter Celtic Monarch, Capt. G. C. Winchester is today at Ogden Point loading 400,000 feet of lumber for eastern Canadian ports.

Other ships expected by King Brothers during the next few days are the Harpathian on Saturday; the Loch Lomond, June 1; the Umberleigh, June 3; the Hadleigh, June 5, and the Hoperange, June 6.

NOTICE TO MARINERS

Without further notice, a practice bombing range will be established by the Royal Canadian Air Force in English Bay, an official Notice to Mariners from Ottawa says. The range will consist of an area within a radius of 660 yards. The bombs are non-explosive and during bombing operations the area will be marked by flags and patrolled by an Air Force motor boat. This area will not be used during the summer months when it is frequented by small pleasure craft.

Mariners are also advised of the existence of shoals in Plumper Sound and Boundary Pass, the former marked by kelp lying 900 feet from the wharf at the northern entrance to Boot Cove, Lyall Harbor, and the latter two miles from Alden Point light.

SAILS SATURDAY

Saturday will see the departure of the Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Japan for Honolulu and the Orient. She will take out a large list of passengers, several of whom have arrived in Victoria to spend a few days before putting to sea.

The Ss. Empress of Asia is now inbound from the Orient and will arrive here early Monday morning.

VANCOUVER SHIPPING

Vancouver, May 28.—The Furness motorship Pacific Pioneer sailed yesterday for England. Included in her cargo is 1,500 tons of grain, 2,400 tons of lead and parcels of flour, shorts, plywood and canned goods.

The British Ms. Alpaca today was reported to have passed the Panama Canal en route to Vancouver from Halifax. She is due here the second week of June and will load grain and lumber for Europe.

To lift a heavy shipment of aspen wood and hemlock logs, the British freighter Hartington berthed at Prince Rupert last week. She is loading for north China and will come here in a few days to load additional cargo.

The Ss. Paris City will sail tonight for the United Kingdom. She will take out 600 tons of metal, fifteen tons of box shooks, part of a shipment of 10,000 doors, 4,500 tons of grain, 300,000 feet of lumber and 2,000 cases of canned goods.

TO BE SCRAPPED

The Ss. Admiral Rodman, veteran of thirty years on the Pacific Coast and known from California to Alaska, is now in the hands of ship breakers. She has been sold to the Pacific Metal and Salvage Company by the Pacific Steamship Lines. First launched as the Dispatch in 1899 at Fairhaven, California, the Admiral Rodman was well known here, having served British Columbia ports in service for the Border Line. For the last four years she has been idle in Lake Union.

VICTORIA BOY BOAT BUILDER

Eleven-year-old Joseph Hynes of This City Makes Name For Himself in Seattle

Seattle, May 28.—All young boys in a seaport city are interested in ships, says "R. H. C.," writing in The Seattle Times. They can tell you when the big liners are to come in and often are better versed in sea lore than their elders.

But Joseph Hynes, eleven-year-old pupil of St. Joseph's School, is more than "just interested" in ships. He's going to be a naval architect some day—as a matter of fact, he is one, on a small scale, now.

When the school day is over, you'll find Joe designing and building little boats of all kinds. Although he uses a scroll saw and other simple tools, the young architect and boatbuilder does most of the carving by hand.

"I've lived in Victoria and Seattle most of my life and I watch for the ships to come in and know all about their schedules from the newspapers, as well as their length, tonnage and everything," Joe said today.

"Just about the time I finished my newest ship I read in the paper the big liner H. F. Alexander will arrive for the first time this year. So I decided to paint my ship just like the H. F. Alexander and I'm going to name it after her too."

The young boatbuilder is the son of Mrs. Stella Hynes and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Beavan-Allen of Burdett Avenue, Victoria. He is staying with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Allen of 503 23rd Avenue N., while going to school here.

Memorable Scene To Be Re-enacted

Vancouver, May 28.—Premier T. D. Pattullo, Mayor David Leeming of Victoria and Mayor G. G. McGeer of Vancouver will take part in ceremonies at Port Moody July 3, when the welcome accorded the first train to arrive on the Pacific Coast fifty years ago will be re-enacted, it was announced today.

A replica of the first train will steam into Port Moody on that day, driven by W. H. Evans, veteran Canadian Pacific Railway engineer who was at the controls of the original first train half a century ago.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of lower low water.

Air Holidays Are Popular

Advance inquiries and business already booked indicate a gain of approximately 25 per cent in vacation travel by air this summer, according to advices received by R. F. Ahrens, district traffic manager of United Air Lines, from his Chicago headquarters.

Ahrens reported that the largest increases are expected to be to the national parks, with many of these being reached this year for the first time by regularly scheduled airplane service. Of the advance inquiries already received, many have been in regard to Vancouver Island, Mount Baker and other vacation playground spots of this area.

NAVY OFFICER ENDS DUTIES

Engineer-Commander T. C. Phillips Will Leave Navy in Few Weeks

COMMANDER T. C. PHILLIPS

Engineer-Commander T. C. Phillips, R.C.N., officer-in-charge at the Naval Dockyard, Esquimalt, for the last few years, will retire shortly, according to word received in Victoria from the Department of National Defence at Ottawa.

Commander Phillips, following service in the First Battle Squadron of the Grand Fleet, the north Atlantic and West Indies squadrons, was selected by the British Admiralty in 1917 for special naval duty in Canada on the staff of Admiral Coke. He subsequently transferred from the Royal Navy to the Canadian Navy.

In 1918 Commander Phillips was appointed director of naval engineering on headquarters staff at Ottawa, which position he held continuously until 1933. During that time he was responsible for the design and construction of the new Canadian destroyers Skeena and Saguenay, which were built in England, the former for service out of Esquimalt and the latter for the Halifax station.

Commander and Mrs. Phillips and their family expect to leave early in June to resume residence at Rockcliffe Park, Ottawa.
